President names three top envoys

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon named a seasoned professional diplomat, Jacob D. Beam, to be U.S. ambassador to Moscow Tuesday.

As his ambassador to Great Britain he picked Walter H. Annenberg, millionaire Philadelphia publisher and a friend of Nixon for 20 years.

Israel seeking U.N. protection

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Israel called on Secretary General U Thant Thursday to make known what form of international action he had in mind to protect Israeli civil aviation from Arab commando attacks.

A note from foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel accusing Arab governments of complicity in the commando attack on an El Al airliner in Zurich Tuesday was delivered to Thant by Yosef Tekoa, Israel's permanent representative.

The note, in which diplomats found touches of sarcasm, said there was "deep interest" in Israel over an official comment by Thant condemning the attack in which he called for "constructive international action" to prevent such acts of violence against international civil aviation in the future.

"Since Israeli civil aviation is the main target of this governmentally sponsored piracy, we should like to be informed of all steps taken or planned," Eban's note said.

Restraint

By placing the problem before Thant, Israel made a gesture of restraint in response to the commando attack in contrast to the retaliatory attack against the Beirut Airport by Israeli commandos after an El Al Airliner was shot up by Arab gunmen in Athens two months ago.

But there was no move by Israel to bring the new attack before the security council, which Israel feels is dominated by a pro-Arab majority.

The 15-member council condemned Israel for the Beirut attack in a resolution Dec. 31 that made no direct mention of the Athens incident.

"The Zurich outrage has now taken place in the atmosphere of international indulgence thus created," said Eban in criticism of the security council resolution.

Diplomats here felt the Israeli note, which was circulated to all members, was designed to win support for Israel's position in world public opinion.

But there was deep concern that any new incident instigated by Arab commandos could lead to direct Israeli retaliation.

The fear of new outbreaks of violence in the middle east that could lead to an escalation of the conflict was reflected in a letter from Lord Caradon, Britain's permanent representative, to Armand-Beard of France, this month's president of the security council.

AFL-CIO leaves federation

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. — George Meany announced Thursday that the AFL-CIO was withdrawing from the International Confederation of Free Trade unions which the American labor movement helped establish 20 years ago to oppose Communist influence in trade unions.

The president of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations declared that his organization was "completely frustrated" by the actions of the confederation, which claims 121 affiliates with 63.5 million members in 94 countries.

He also claimed that the confederation had mishandled financial matters.

Although the confederation was originally set up as an anti-Communist federation, Meany charged that major organizations in the ICFTU had flouted that principle and were engaged in efforts at "rapprochement" with Moscow.

The manner in which the confederation handled the membership application of the United Automobile Workers, after the auto union left the AFL-CIO last year, proved to be the "last straw," Meany said.

The AFL-CIO, which has been the largest contributor to the confederation with annual dues payments of $360,000, will stop all payments as of the end of February, Meany said.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, was named ambassador to Belgium.

The three appointments, which had been forecast in advance, rounded out Nixon's diplomatic assignments to key European posts as he prepared to leave for a week-long tour of the continent. The President previously had asked Sargent Shriver to remain as ambassador to France.

All three of the newly designated envoys will require Senate confirmation and thus will not be taking up their posts until after Nixon's return from Europe a week from Sunday.

Beam, who will be 60 in March, has been in the foreign service since 1931 and is rated an expert on Eastern Europe. He is presently serving as ambassador to Czechoslovakia and was on duty there last summer during the Soviet invasion.

A native of Princeton, N.J., Beam served previously as minister-counselor in Moscow and took charge of the embassy when Ambassador George F. Kennan was declared persona non grata by the Stalin regime.

As ambassador to Poland, Beam acted as U.S. representative in the Warsaw talks with the Chinese Communists from 1957 to 1962, and then he became assistant director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

At Moscow he will take over the post recently vacated by Llewellyn Thompson.

Annenberg is slated to replace Ambassador David K. E. Bruce at the Court of St. James'. It will be the 60-year-old publisher's first government post.

The son of a German immigrant, Annenberg built a communications empire that includes the Philadelphia Daily News, Seventeen Magazine, TV Guide, the New York Morning Telegraph and the Daily Racing Form, as well as a number of radio and TV stations.

Annenberg was born in Milwaukee. He and his wife Leonore have homes in Philadelphia and Palm Springs, Calif.

Lindsay set to seek second term

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Mayor John V. Lindsay has told close political associates that he now intends to seek a second term.

He has also informed them that Richard R. Aurelio will serve as his campaign manager.

Publicly Lindsay continued Thursday to parry all questions about his plans by saying he has not decided whether he will be a candidate.

But a formal announcement that he will run again is expected late next month or in early April.

Assemblyman Vito Marcina, Brooklyn Republican, has announced his intention of entering the June 17 primary.

State Senator John J. Marchi, Republican-Conservative of Staten Island, has said he is considering entering the primary.

Thus Lindsay, in theory the city's top Republican, will be in the unusual position of having to fight one and perhaps two other members of his party merely to get the nomination.

According to friends of the mayor, he returned from his New Year's holiday in the Bahamas with the intention of not seeking a second term.

But in the seven weeks since then he has changed his mind and decided to place his political future on the line by seeking a second term.

Garrison forced to rest case

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

NEW ORLEANS — District Attorney Jim Garrison Thursday rested his case for a conspiracy in the murder of President John F. Kennedy.

The shakiness of Garrison's case was demonstrated when Criminal District Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr. said he would have to study the testimony before deciding if the state had even made a prima facie case.

The judge had ruled in effect last week that a legal case had been made, but Thursday he appeared to be uncertain.

He said he would read the entire testimony of Perry Raymond Russo, the state's chief witness, before ruling on the defense motion for a directed verdict. Haggerty said he would announce his ruling this morning.

In the meantime, he said, attorneys for Clay L. Shaw, the defendant, should begin lining up witnesses for possible testimony.

Shaw, a retired 57-year-old New Orleans businessman, is charged with conspiring with Lee Harvey Oswald and David W. Ferrie, a pilot who died during Garrison's investigation, to murder Kennedy.

Garrison's decision to rest his case came after the Louisiana Supreme Court refused to order Haggerty to grant the mistrial demanded Wednesday by the state after Haggerty said he did not believe a state witness.

The District Attorney's office had filed a writ with the Supreme Court, an Appeals Court in the state, asking the court to hear arguments on its demands and to stop the trial until there was a ruling.

Haggerty said six of the seven state justices signed an order denying Garrison's application.

Review

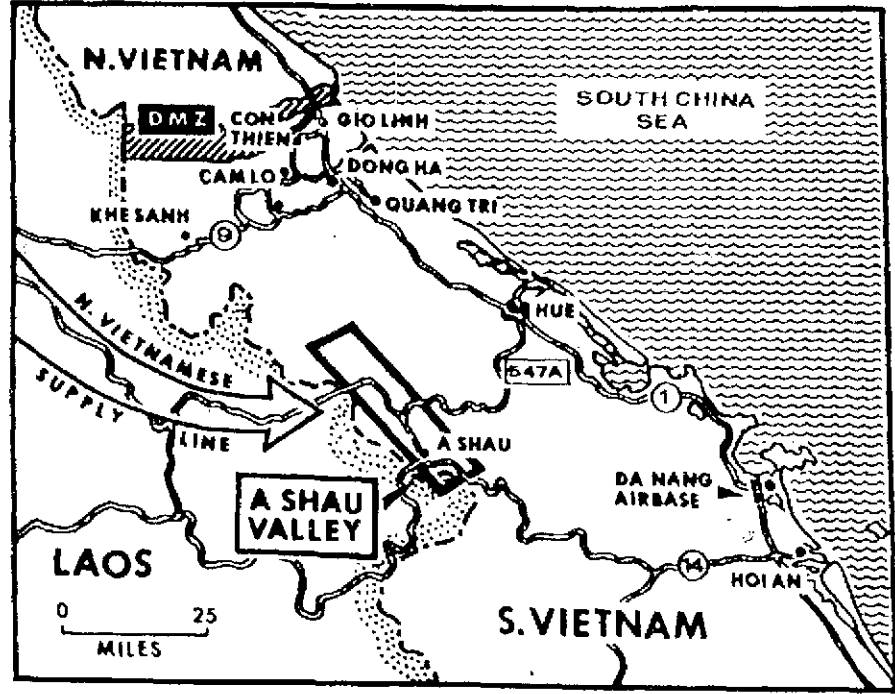

Garrison sat glowering as Haggerty said he needed to read over much of the testimony before deciding if the state had proved a semblance of a case with the 43 witnesses who were heard by the jury.

In asking for a directed verdict, F. Irvin Dymond, chief counsel for Shaw, said that Russo, a 27-year-old encyclopedia salesman, was the only witness who even suggested that he had heard a conspiracy.

"And he denied it," said Dymond.

He read from a transcript two statements which Russo gave about a September, 1963, meeting at Ferrie's apartment where the state contends that the plan to kill Kennedy was formulated.

"I never said anything about a conspiracy," Russo testified last week. "I never sat in on any conspiracy."

'Heat's on' again in Vietnam

Marines fight Reds near Laotian border

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines assaulted and overran two entrenched North Vietnamese units and killed 48 enemy troops in fierce fighting in the jungled mountains near the Laotian frontier, the U.S. Command reported today.

Marine casualties were reported as five killed and 26 wounded in the two assaults which occurred Thursday as elements of the 9th Marine Regiment continued their massive sweep through the rugged terrain north of the A Shau Valley, 390 miles north of Saigon.

With a cumulative total of nearly 600 enemy troops killed and resistance growing stiffer each day, the operation, code-named Dewey Canyon, has developed into one of the largest recent battles of the war.

In the biggest of Thursday's two encounters, the Marines attacked and overran what appeared to be a North Vietnamese artillery installation, one of many known to exist in the area.

Supported by tactical air strikes and artillery of their own, the Marines killed 71 enemy troops who fought from a dug-in bunker complex. Among the equipment captured by the Marines were two 122MM howitzers, a 12.7MM antiaircraft gun and a five-ton, tracked prime mover.

In the second encounter which occurred nearby at about the same time, Marines overran another bunker complex, killing 17 enemy troops, capturing a 2½-ton truck and a large supply of ammunition including eighty 122MM shells and 170 rounds of antiaircraft ammunition.

Operation Dewey Canyon is aimed at disrupting North Vietnamese infiltration and supply activities in the border region, a long-time Communist staging area.

Air Force B52s also struck at North Vietnamese base camps and troop concentrations in the same mountainous area along the Laotian frontier Thursday.

The bombers hammered again at Communist base camps and other targets in the provinces near Saigon, dumping more than 700 tons of bombs in four additional raids.

One raid hit enemy staging areas 27 miles north-east of the capital in Bien Hoa Province. Two more were in Long Khanh Province, 49 miles to the north-east, and the last was 36 miles northeast in Binh Duong Province.

U.S. military sources said Thursday the enemy has about 7,500 more troops for any new drive in the Saigon area than the Communist command massed for the big Tet offensive last year.

Shafer to move against violence

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer promised "prompt state action" Thursday if local authorities fail to cope with what he called "the increasing violence in our schools."

At the same time, the governor urged "local authorities to take firm action." In some cases, he suggested, a "back on the rear" by parents might help.

Negroes disrupt classes

HARRISBURG (AP) — Police in plain clothes patrolled the halls of Harrisburg's racially troubled public schools Thursday and cruised the neighborhood streets, but their efforts at maintaining order were not altogether successful.

Both of the city's high schools, John Harris and William Penn, closed early. John Harris dismissed classes at 11:30 a.m. when 200 black students staged a boisterous confrontation with school and civil authorities. William Penn shut down for the day shortly after 1 p.m. when a group of black students from John Harris went to the William Penn grounds.

Other schools conducted classes without major incident, although attendance was off, in many cases by as much as 50 per cent. Classes were 15 minutes late starting at Edison Junior High School while police investigated a telephoned bomb threat.

Violence first developed Monday and schools were closed Tuesday for a "cooling off" ordered by City Superintendent Glenn C. Parker. The sporadic violence continued Wednesday, with many citizens and small business people loudly complaining against what they termed a "break down in law enforcement."

At an emergency meeting Wednesday night, the police patrols were ordered in a joint move between school officials and law enforcement authorities.

Mayor Albert H. Straub, who began taking a positive hand in the trouble Wednesday night, arrived at John Harris after Thursday's trouble erupted.

It began in a vocational workshop when an instructor tried to quiet an unruly student. The instructor ultimately called a plainclothes officer.

When the policeman placed the student under arrest, the officer and a colleague were surrounded immediately by scores of Negro students.

The arresting officer called headquarters on his walkie-talkie and this brought a swarm of 35 uniformed policemen with riot gear.

The student was carted off to jail and his colleagues then lodged a vigorous complaint against the presence of uniformed policemen on the school premises.

They objected also to the high percentage of white absentees. In some classrooms, there were no whites at all Thursday. The Negro students at John Harris said they had to go to school so why weren't the whites there.

Mayor Straub said authorities should consider arresting the known trouble-makers,

Ex-Penn Argyll coach assesses trouble

ESSC graduate calls school riot 'rebellion'

By JAMES RILEY
Pocono Record Editor

HARRISBURG — "It's open rebellion. You can't call it anything else," Edward "Jake" Palmer, Lebanon High School principal, said Thursday night in regard to the school uprisings in Harrisburg.

(See editorial on page four)

Palmer is well qualified to make an appraisal of this type as he was principal at William Penn High, in Harrisburg, for the past two years, before moving to Lebanon. He was also a highly successful basketball coach at William Penn for three years, winning two straight championships in the Central Penn League, before becoming principal at Cumberland Valley High.

The Lebanon principal is a graduate of East Stroudsburg State College, where he served as captain of the basketball team in his senior year. He built Pen Argyll High into a basketball power in the Lehigh-Northampton League after graduating from college.

"The Negro students have simply taken over the schools of Harrisburg. They burned a school flag in the auditorium at William Penn Thursday, closed all white students and white administrators from the auditorium as they drew up a list of grievances."

"Among the demands are more Negro teachers, installing Negro history as a course, special food in the cafeteria and new charges of racial favoritism," Palmer said.

third straight day at William Penn, smashed all the coaches' pictures along "Athletic Row" where the school tells its athletic story as far back as 1927," Palmer explained.

The former William Penn principal explained that it is the younger Negroes who are causing the trouble. "The seniors and juniors haven't started the uprisings, but rather the sophomores and freshmen," Palmer explained.

Palmer also explained that many educators in the Harrisburg area feel that the entire rebellion is being sparked by an adult organization.

William Penn's basketball team is undefeated in the second half Central Penn race and is scheduled to play host to Steelton in the championship game Saturday afternoon. The league, due to earlier trouble in Lancaster and York, plays its tonight's night basketball games Saturday afternoon.

William Penn's Negro students, which rate about 50-50 with white students in school enrollment, tried to knock down the office door of the school administration, but were repulsed by police.

Twenty-seven Negroes were arrested at John Harris High, where the Negro population is 40 per cent of the student enrollment.

"But, actually, it is a very small segment of the Negro students who are starting the trouble. They have worked some really good kids into a bad situation," Palmer explained.

Palmer, who as a coach befriended the Negro athlete and student, said he felt trouble brewing ever since the assassination of Martin Luther King. "But, I never expected anything like this," he quickly added.

"Don't blame all the Negro kids in Harrisburg for this trouble, because they aren't all guilty," the Lebanon principal pleaded. Palmer explained that 16 of the 12 William Penn basketball players are Negro and not one has taken any part in the riots.

"But, the schools in Harrisburg are a shambles of broken windows, ruined lockers, heavily damaged cafeterias and evidence of complete disregard for public property," Palmer concluded.

Educators in Harrisburg anxiously await today and what it may bring.

Reds refuse U.S. proposal to common ground in Paris

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

PARIS — The United States urged the other side at the fifth plenary session of the peace talks Thursday to seek "common ground" for negotiation by tackling military issues, and particularly the mutual withdrawal of armed forces of South Vietnam.

However, the session produced no sign of a thaw in the Communist side's rigid all-or-nothing position.

The outcome of Thursday's meeting came as no surprise to conference experts who feel that no possibility for give-and-take will emerge before President Richard M. Nixon's visit here, and then most probably in backstage contacts. The President is scheduled to be in Paris from Feb. 28 to March 2.

Thursday, delegates for Hanoi and the National Liberation Front harshly restated earlier demands for "complete and unconditional" withdrawal of U.S. forces and a "correct" political settlement that would do away with the present Saigon regime.

The Vietcong's chief negotiator, Tran Van Kiem, alleged that the U.S. role in Vietnam was "not different at all" from that of the Nazis, Italian Fascists and Japanese Militarists.

Tax cutback could hurt

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a brief and less-than-cordial encounter with the Senate House Economic Committee Wednesday, Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy cautioned against "attempting to stop inflation too abruptly."

Kennedy said Congress must extend the 10 per cent tax surcharge for another year "unless fiscal 1970 federal expenditures can be cut back appreciably" from the $195.3 billion level fixed in the budget.

all" from that of the Nazis, Italian Fascists and Japanese Militarists.

If there was a difference, Kiem said, it was the "refined, overt, cruel and sanguinary nature" of American crimes in Vietnam, whose methods surpassed those of World War II criminals.

The new chief U.S. spokesman, Harold Kaplan, told a news conference afterward that his delegation had not deemed Kiem's remarks worthy of a rebuttal.

Commenting on the lack of visible progress in Thursday's round-table session, which lasted five hours 15 minutes, Kaplan observed: "We are prepared to be as patient, as we need to be."

The chief U.S. negotiator, Henry Cabot Lodge, explained to reporters after the meeting that the talks were in the necessary process of defining the bargaining positions, and that patience was required.

Defense secretary favors building antimissile system

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Thursday "I lean toward going forward" with an antimissile system and rejected Senate pleas to delay its deployment pending arms control talks with Russia.

Laird made it clear his overriding concern is with Russia pushing a strategic weapons buildup "at a very high rate" and with Red China's missile threat in the mid-1970s.

The new defense secretary told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that:

"The Russians have escalated the arms race, including test of a 'sophisticated new ABM (antiballistic missile) system.' —Communist China is expected to have 20 to 30 intercontinental missile launchers in place by 1975. This figure is about a dozen missiles bigger than the 18-to-20 figure Laird used at a news conference last week.

—The Soviet Union has in being or under construction more than the 1,054 U.S. ICBMs and is embarked on a "crash program" to catch up with the United States in missile-launching submarines. The Soviets won't close the missile submarine gap until 1973 or 1974, he said.

In relays committee members — none of whom spoke up for the ABM — unsuccessfully pressed Laird for a commitment to delay deployment of the Sentinel ABM.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., expressed the view that the effect of an antimissile system in escalating the arms race towers over other questions involved in the controversy, including cost and effectiveness.

Referring to the arms race, Case said "these things have gotten to such a state where they are so horrible that we should make this (arms control negotiations) our first order of business."

The New Jersey Republican looked at Laird and said "I urge that you reconsider" his attitude on not holding up the ABM pending arms talks with Russia.

Laird listened in silence. Later, Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., told Laird he had a "tremendous opportunity" to stop the arms race and that the Nixon administration should press in this direction to "give greater security to the United States."

About the most the senators got out of Laird was his statement that he shares the hope of Secretary of State William P. Rogers that nuclear weapons negotiations can start before any U.S. antimissile system is deployed.

But, in repeated exchanges with Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the defense secretary indicated he did not want to hold up on any antimissile system until the effective date of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty. He said it might take 12 or 24 months to win ratification.

Russians worry about Rumanians

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

VIENNA — The Soviet Union's special envoys to Rumania returned to Moscow Thursday after a sudden 24-hour visit in Bucharest during which they reportedly discussed the full spectrum of the complex military and political relations between the two countries.

Both sides kept official silence on the reasons for the Bucharest trip by Marshal Ivan I. Yakubovsky, the commander of the Warsaw Pact Alliance Forces, and First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov, the Soviet Union's chief Eastern European trouble-shooter.

The two officials conferred at length Wednesday with President Nicolae Ceausescu, who is an outspoken critic of the new Soviet concept of "limited sovereignty" of Communist countries, and Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer, Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu and Armed Forces Minister Col. Gen. Ion Ionița.

Manescu also met separately with Kuznetsov, which suggested that the political aspects of Soviet-Rumanian relations came up for a detailed review.

Speculation in informed Eastern European quarters Thursday centered on the likelihood that the Soviet team wanted to clarify Rumania's attitudes toward the Warsaw Pact military activities and toward Soviet policies in Europe's Communist area.

Rumania's position within the Warsaw Pact, especially since last August's Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia, with whom Bucharest had maintained warm relations.

Lenten Guidepost

Pretense obstacle to success

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is one of a series of Lenten stories people will tell from incidents in their own lives during the 40 weekdays leading up to Easter Sunday, April 6.)

By JIM NABORS
Star of Television

My dad was a police officer in the little country town of Sylacauga, Ala., and there wasn't a more loved man anywhere.

He would make about $12 a week, and he was always giving away some of that. Dad couldn't stand to see a man sitting in jail on Sunday. He was forever opening the doors and giving some vagrant his freedom and a couple of dollars to help him on his way.

With Dad giving away his money we never had much cash around the house. Mother didn't complain — she just went to work. She got a job as a waitress in Sylacauga's truck-stop diner serving coffee and eggs 14 hours a day, seven days a week.

But Mother was glad to do it because she had a dream. "Your daddy and I want you young ones to make something out of yourselves," she'd say to me and my two sisters. Our parents saw us through college.

Debt to pay
So when I graduated I had a debt to pay. I was starting out with love and sacrifice behind me. To make it all worth their while, I was determined to accomplish great things.

It didn't work out that way. I had hoped for a job in advertising. So I moved to New York to start my career on Madison Avenue. I never once got past the receptionist's desk.

I tried everything I could think of to be less bashful and country. I bought myself some clothes like the gray flannel uniform I saw everywhere. I even worked at perfecting an eastern accent.

But it didn't do any good. I ended up with a job as a typist.

I also ended up with a bad case of asthma from the New York weather. So I wrote home that all my education was getting me in New York was the wheezes and that I was moving on. I'd heard that California was a good place for asthma.

Hustling crates
Four years after I left New York I was hustling crates around a warehouse in Los Angeles.

Four more years passed. I was almost 30 and I'd achieved exactly zero. It was the low point of my life, as far as self-confidence went.

And yet, strangely enough, that time was a high point too. For from another direction life suddenly took on meaning.

I'd taken to slipping into the back of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in Hollywood, just to listen to the Mass. I didn't understand much of what I saw and less of what I heard, but I sensed somehow that it represented the only thing on earth that really mattered.

Slowly as I went through weeks of instruction, I learned to put a name on a feeling I'd struggled with so many years. It was guilt — guilt because I had not repaid my parents' investment in me.

Answer came

And more slowly still God's answer came forward: We repay our parents not by "succeeding," but by becoming the completed persons He intends us to be. The day I put Him in the center of my life was the day I took that first step toward becoming a whole person.

And you know, a funny thing happened. When I stopped trying so hard to win success, I relaxed and became plain Jim Nabors from a little country town in Alabama.

I dropped the last pretense of an eastern accent. I dressed the way I wanted. I began doing some of the crazy things I'd always wanted to do, like going to an amateur show nights after work and putting on a little skit.

Hometown folks used to say I had a good singing voice, so in my skit I had this country boy with the heavy hillbilly accent suddenly sing an aria from Grand Opera. The audience had as much fun as I did and I was asked to come back.

And then one night Andy Griffith was sitting out front. After the show he asked me to read for a part on his television program, and I have been in show business ever since.

In Hollywood they say you've arrived when they name a sandwich after you. Sure enough, there's a Jim Nabors'

Special for sale at the studio commissary now: pastrami with tomato.

But I notice that my name on the menu-board is pasted over the name of another actor who "arrived" just a few years ago, and I'm sure someday someone else's name will be pasted over mine.

That's why I give thanks every morning of my life that when I found the real Center of things, it was the One Who cannot change.

SATURDAY — Tony Fontane, recording star, tells how prayer brought him back when an accident caused him to be blinded and lose his voice.

Pike murder case

Extradition papers found

MILFORD—Pike County District Attorney William C. Gumble said Thursday that the extradition papers in the James Michael Olenick murder case have been erroneously forwarded to his office by the Pennsylvania Governor's office.

Gumble said that the customary and proper procedure to be followed during extradition matters is for the district attorney to request the governor of Pennsylvania to request the governor of the state in which the defendant is apprehended to allow extradition.

The papers are customarily forwarded directly from one governor's office to the other.

Gumble added, that in an effort to proceed with the extradition as soon as possible, he has forwarded the papers directly to Gov. Nelson

Rockefeller's office in New York.

Earlier this week, it was believed that the extradition papers were lost. A press aide to Gov. Raymond Shafter said the papers had been mailed special delivery.

Aides to Gov. Rockefeller reported, however, that the papers had not arrived in Albany, N.Y.

Olenick, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Olenick of 17 Reservoir Ave., Port Jervis, N.Y., is accused of slaying Robert Ziepk, 41, of Cambria Heights, N.Y.

Olenick is currently in the Orange County Jail, Goshen, N.Y. He is being held on a fugitive warrant issued in New York State after a murder warrant for his arrest was obtained in Pike County.

Taxpayers group criticizes final Greene subdivision

NEWFOUNDLAND — The Greene Township Property Owners and Taxpayers Assn. has criticized the final draft of a subdivision ordinance unveiled by the Greene Township Planning Commission.

The association reported it has not agreed to the final draft which was presented to them last week by the township planners. The subdivision regulations had been revised following objections by the association last year.

The association had been meeting with the planners in an effort to negotiate a suitable, workable and enforceable subdivision ordinance for the township.

A list of recommendations for subdivision regulations were submitted to the planning board last December 9, but association officials said the recommendations were not given due consideration.

Mrs. Mildred Ruth, one of the prime movers in the association told the planners at the last meeting that the taxpayers group favors an ordinance, but added it should not be construed to mean that the group favors the final draft.

Attorneys' review
Milford attorney Sidney Krawitz, representing the taxpayers, is currently reviewing the revised ordinance. He will discuss it with Robert Kayton, township solicitor.

Following are some of the recommendations submitted by the association for regulations to be contained in a new ordinance:

— A subdivision is if more than five lots or parcels are sold per year from any one tract.

— Minimum lot size for single family dwelling should be 20,000 square feet if the lot is not serviced by central water nor sewerage facilities. No lot should have less than 25 feet of road frontage nor should lots be less than 100 feet in width at the proposed building line.

— Minimum lot size should be 16,000 square feet if central water and sewerage is provided by the developer.

— All lot area calculations should be from the center line of road right-of-way.

— A minimum 10 foot setback line from all sides of lots should be maintained.

— All new road construction within a subdivision should conform to the minimum standards established in the Second Class Townships Codes. The right-of-way width should be 33 feet; travelway width 18 feet; material depth six inches. Restrictions for right-of-way clearance are also established.

— Subdivision plans should be submitted to the planning commission and should contain: preliminary plan with two copies of an informal sketch, road layout, lot layout and approximate size, existing utility easements and geographic location with adequate directions.

The final plan should contain plot plan with surveyor's or registered engineer's seal; proposed lot numbers; base markers or control points; tract boundaries; existing buildings and other improvements; maximum grades of roads; existing buildings and other improvements; maximum grades of roads; existing or proposed sewerage lines, storm drains, culverts, petroleum or power lines, etc. Other requirements are also listed.

— An application fee shall be paid to the planning commission to review subdivision plans for six or more lots. The fee should be $35.

PV school presents 'Laugh-in'

BRODHEADSVILLE — All the laughs and avant-garde nonsense of television's "Laugh-In" series will be revived and brought to stage at Pleasant Valley High School by members of the faculty during an assembly program this afternoon.

The performance will be a "kick-off" and preview of two other performances to be given in the gymnasium tonight. These will be benefit basketball games for the Scholarship Fund.

The Women Faculty of Pleasant Valley are scheduled to play against the senior girls at 6:30 p.m.

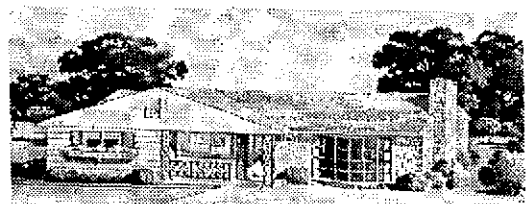

Pleasant Valley faculty will play against Stroudsburg High School faculty at 8 p.m.

The general public is invited to help "Fill the Gym, Night".

— Conditions are set for private developments where streets or roads to be constructed are to remain private and not offered to the township for acceptance. In some cases the right-of-way may be less than 33 feet and the travelway less than 18 feet.

If, at a later date the roads are submitted to the township, they must conform with township specifications. If the roads do not meet requirements, funds should be included along with the offer for acceptance so that the requirements can be met.

The association will meet at 8 p.m. February 27 in the American Legion Hall.

Charmin Paper Products seeks Pike, Wayne lumber

NORMAN LEHDE
Record Correspondent

MILFORD — George Collier, chairman of the Technical Action Panel (TAP) of Pike and Wayne counties expressed optimism following a meeting on utilization of excess timber in the counties.

Collier, work unit conservationist for the Pike and Wayne County Soil Conservation Districts, while stating he was disappointed that only a few individual timber interests in the two counties were represented at the meeting in the Pinchot Institute, declared he was pleased with the interest in the area's timber shown by the representatives of the Charmin Paper Products Co. of Mehoopany.

He declared that TAPS, which was initiated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, would continue their efforts to locate a medium by which land owners with limited equipment and transportation facilities might benefit from the company's demand for pole timber.

Representing the Charmin Co., a subsidiary of Proctor and Gamble, were Nelson Folsom and Richard C. Rodenbach. They explained the company is currently planning to establish a pay-rate per ton for pole timber hauled to the Mehoopany plant from beyond a 55-mile radius.

The present maximum rate per ton is $7.95 which is based on a 55-mile haul. Both men expressed the hope that a cooperative effort between the company and the people in the area might be established for the mutual benefit of all parties.

Also addressing the meeting, which was attended by about 30 persons, were District Forester John Bilzer, Wayne County Planner Richard Wood and James P. Walton of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co.

Assistance for sufferers

Probation offers aid to drug users

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the seventh in a series of articles dealing with the seriousness of the narcotics problem in Monroe County. The reports of law, medical and ministerial officials will cover the past, present and future of drug traffic in the area.)

By JAMES RILEY
Pocono Record Editor

STROUDSBURG — Individual assistance is a major weapon in treating those who have become victims of the spreading narcotics racket and much of that attention is supplied by the juvenile probation officer.

In Monroe County the juvenile probation officer is Henry McCool, who has served in this capacity for a period of 12 years.

"I try to help those who have been caught playing some role in the narcotics traffic and during the process of conviction are placed on probation by the court," McCool explained.

"Part of the assistance supplied by my office includes referral to an agency, psychiatric help, working with agencies or trying to help youngsters understand themselves and their problems," the probation officer continued.

McCool reported that very few narcotics cases have been brought to his office during the past 12 years, but much information has been passed through the probation office that has aided the investigation of narcotics in this area.

"However, I must be honest. Some of the information that has been presented to investigation officers has proven false," McCool quickly added.

"I have had very little direct contact with narcotics and narcotics users. The court has curtailed the use of narcotics in Monroe County by a fair and firm handling of cases in the past. If narcotics users realize that an area presents firm prosecution, they like to steer clear of that area," McCool related.

Monroe County Court has used every means at its disposal to issue orders for the protection of the community and its residents," the probation officer added.

Although McCool doesn't believe the narcotics problem to be as big in Monroe County as many other individuals, he does believe that a problem exists. "Those who use drugs have a personality or character disorder. Some people just can't adjust," McCool reported.

"I feel there are narcotics in Monroe County, but I don't know how much. My direct dealing with narcotics and drug users has been so small that I can't speak with authority. I've read a great deal, but the cases in which I have been involved can be counted on your two hands," McCool further explained.

McCool said he has found little difference between summer and winter traffic in drugs, due to the fact winter resort business has grown so much in recent years.

The probation officer doesn't really believe that the location of the Pocono Mountains in regards to New York and Philadelphia has any real relation to the drug traffic in this area. "It isn't the location but the need to supply demand that governs the amount of traffic," McCool continued.

"Even if our area was located in the wilderness of Iowa, and we needed drugs, would become readily available," the probation officer added.

"Rumors and wild stories have added to the mystery of narcotics in this region. Drugs are still a mystery to me, but I know that the court will not tolerate the selling and using of drugs in Monroe County," McCool related.

The probation officer doesn't feel that a well adjusted person will resort to the use of narcotics. He reasons that the use of narcotics is actually an attempt to escape from reality.

"I don't feel that a person using drugs should be excused. They shouldn't be able to hide behind psychiatry and they are responsible for their action. However, I feel they have certain character disorders and weaknesses and need treatment," McCool reasoned.

The probation officer feels that the pusher and seller are the true underworld, not the user of narcotics.

"Drugs are harmful and anyone who says it's nobody's business that he's a narcotics addict is wrong. They hurt themselves, their families and communities. They could end up in mental hospital and thus become an expense to the state. A drug addict hurts society in general," McCool concluded.

Lowering voting age difficult

A strong movement is underway to legalize the voting age in the United States at 18 rather than 21 as is the case right now. On the surface this sounds wonderful and on a hasty judgment might earn unqualified support. However, on close examination there are a number of qualifications.

It has long been our opinion that 18-year-olds are better qualified to vote now than at any time in history. Teenagers of today are more intelligent and have been exposed to the daily routines of life more than any boys and girls of a comparable age in the past.

Modern youth has a much more knowledgeable approach to government and worldly affairs than ever before. Teenagers apparently recognize troubles today to a greater degree than those of a comparable age in the past. But—

In order to shoulder the responsibility of the lowest voting age in history the 18, 19 and 20-year-olds must examine their ranks and prepare for the greatest privilege that any government can give to any person.

You have shown that you recognize the problems. But, members of your teen-age group have been quick to react with violence, rather than with common sense and compassion. Members of your age group have been equally as quick to follow the leadership of those in the same age division or those with questionable backgrounds, rather than your parents or informed adults.

Rioting on college campuses, violence in high school class rooms, ill informed direction into demonstrations, such as that which unfolded in Chicago last year, and an apparent disregard for people and property have hurt your image.

The fact that you are old enough to fight in a war at 18 should make you eligible to vote at the same age. However, you must also remember the fact that you were born, raised, educated and will someday make your living in this nation. Thus you owe our country a debt that you are obligated to pay by serving its best interests.

This move about to give Teenage America a voting right isn't coming entirely from the generosity of our lawmakers. In fact, the Democratic and Republican parties will reap the harvest as they battle to put your name on their voting rolls.

Don't be drawn into a situation where you will be the tool of politics. But, enter it with a determination to do a better job than those who came before you.

If you are granted a vote at 18, examine your ranks. Clear it of the trouble makers and extremists. Stamp out violence and wage your battle at the polls. You have some glaring weaknesses and some brilliant strengths and the right to vote should come only after the latter wins out over the former.

Voting is no joke. It's an obligation and a duty. You must recognize the fact that despite your intelligence now, you are going to be a better citizen and a better voter at age 30. There's no substitute for experience.

Each of you must help to paint the future rosy within the 18, 19 and 20-year-old age bracket.

Average day in life

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The mantel clock went tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock. Mildred sat in the kidney-shaped chair reading the paper. Ernest hung his coat in the closet and sat in the egg-shaped chair breathing smugly. Tick-tock. Tick-tock.

"A hard day?"
"The usual. The windshield wipers fell off the car on the way home."
"You were lucky. It could have been a front wheel."
"That's the way I figure. After all, the thing's over a year old."
Tick-tock, tick-tock.
"Did you get robbed today?"

Two robberies
"Only twice. First time on the parking lot and the second behind the drugstore after I stopped to get your medicine. Lucky thing I cashed a check at the drugstore, or I wouldn't have had anything to give the second fellow."
Tick-tock.

"Did you get my prescription filled?"
"Yeah, they filled it all right, but there wasn't enough money in the checking account to cover it, so they're going to send it around later with a lawyer. He's going to bring some papers for us to sign."
"Papers? What for?"
"They want us to post the house as collateral for the drugs."

"That's nice of them."
"That's what I told them. They'll give us three years to pay."
Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock.
"Anything in the paper, Mildred?"
"Mr. Rockefeller wants to keep our taxes a perpetual 10 per cent higher."

"It's worth it when you think of all our blessings."
"And Mr. Laird says we're probably going to have to pay five billion dollars after all to shoot down nuclear missiles."
"Can't complain about that. People have spent a lot to put up nuclear missiles. The least we can do is spend a little more to shoot them down."

"I guess it keeps people working."
"It's why we've got the greatest economy on earth, Mildred."
Tick-tock, tick-tock.
"Oh, Ernest, I almost forgot."

"Let me guess. It's bad news about the income taxes."

"Well, I'm afraid you're going to have to auction your railroad-poster collection and your spare shoes if we're going to make it this year."

"As long as it helps the Vietcong from landing at San Diego, Mildred, I'd pawn my Martini pitcher."

Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock.
"I pawned your Martini pitcher today, Ernest."

"But only for a healthy social cause, I'll bet."

"Yes, the children needed air fare to get to San Francisco State so they can join the riots."

"Ah, kids. They're wonderful, aren't they?"
Ate for evil
"They felt they just had to do something dynamic to atone for all the evil you and I have created and perpetuated in American society."

"Thank heaven our children are not vicious like us, Mildred."

Tick-tock, tick-tock.
"Mildred."

Tick-tock, tick-tock.
"Mildred, what in the world do you find so absorbing in that newspaper?"

"It says here that men with your living habits have just had the odds on escaping early death by diseases of the cardiac, circulatory, pulmonary and central-nervous systems radically changed against them."

"Well, you know what I always say. You can't enjoy the highest standard of living on earth without breaking a few eggs. Better dead than Red, eh?"

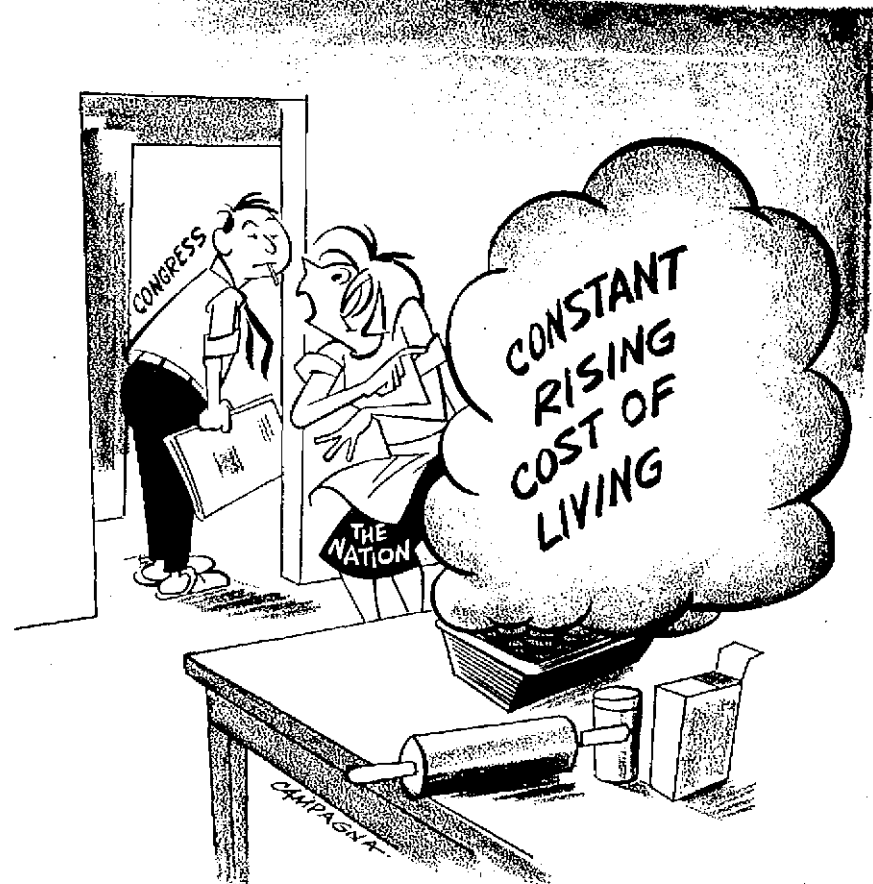

Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock.
"What did they decide about the new turnpike?"

"Good news. It won't come through the house after all. It will be elevated at this location and we'll be able to stay on. Right under an approach ramp."

"Imagine! Me! Being that close to the progress that makes this country great."

Tick-tock, tick-tock. Tick-tock, tick-tock. Tick-tock, tick-tock. Tick-tock, tick-tock.

Mildred and Ernest sat quietly listening to time running out, and later ate a hearty dinner of frozen hamburger, frozen potatoes and frozen spinach.

'Don't stand there—do something!'

Direction visible

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON—From the public actions and the private talk of President Nixon and his associates, it is now possible to get a reasonably good impression of this administration's direction in several important domestic areas. That direction might be described as "a little to the right of the left of center."

Nixon's antirace program for the District of Columbia, which the Administration regards as a possible national model, includes the dangerous and disturbing possibility of a limited system of preventive detention; otherwise, it is less punitive than his campaign rhetoric suggested and places a healthy emphasis on improving police and court procedures and the administration of justice.

The President also has moved to extend the life of the Johnson created Office of Economic Opportunity for another year, an even further departure from the Nixon campaign line. This appears to reflect a judgment—as Pat Moynihan put it—that the poverty program's "goals are valid and this administration wishes to embrace them as its own goals."

On the tough and immediate question of enforcing school desegregation, Secretary Finch of H.E.W. has moved on from an uncertain start in which he delayed final decision to withhold federal funds from five southern school districts. He has since cracked down on three other southern districts and has spoken out bravely about attacking the widespread de facto school segregation outside the South—some of which he believes is plain old discrimination.

Seldom applied pressure
There also is some barely discernible motion toward relief for the financially hard-pressed states—although nothing like the sweeping proposals of Governor Rockefeller of New York. On this issue, the Governor has poured on the kind of pressure seldom applied to a President by a defeated rival, or even by a party member in excellent standing with his leader. Having drastically cut back proposed New York social expenditures, while making it known that one of his purposes was to force federal action to aid the states, Rockefeller then preached his gospel directly to the President last week in a highly publicized cabinet-room session. Later, he hired the respected former Democratic H.E.W. Secretary, Wilbur Cohen, to help put his state-aid plans into legislative form. Then he returned to Washington on what he called "a selling trip"—the theme of which was that unless some help for the states was forthcoming, the federal system might collapse.

It might, too, at least in terms of the states' ability to provide even low levels of social services. Even so, few high Nixon Administration officials are ready to go along with the Rockefeller plan to retain indefinitely the 10 per cent surcharge on federal income taxes and turn the revenues over to the states for educational purposes.

One official with great influence on domestic legislation points out, for instance, that the surcharge was passed for a specific anti-inflationary purpose and was coupled at the time with a congressional direction for reduced federal spending.

It therefore would be a "breach of faith," in this influential view, to put the surcharge on a permanent basis or to use its handsome proceeds to finance new federal spending programs.

Rockefeller has nevertheless succeeded in dramatizing the fiscal needs of the states. The result might be quicker motion toward limited forms of assistance. Finch, for instance, has under sympathetic consideration a plan to establish a federally supported "mean" between Mississippi's $7.90 monthly payment to dependent children and New York's $50.83 (1968 figures).

The difference between the payment level of a state like Mississippi and the "mean" would be paid by Washington, which would also take over a small percentage of payments above the mean by states like New York. The higher-paying states would further profit, it is believed, from a slowdown of the migration of welfare recipients out of the low-paying states.

That is less state aid than Rockefeller is advocating although, for the poor, it is more—again—than might have been expected from the campaign discussion of welfare issues.

As for helping the states with health and education expenditures, high administration officials are talking mostly about an eventual system of block grants, providing the states more flexibility in the use of federal funds.

Allen-Goldsmith Report

Deluge of anger

WASHINGTON — Members of congress are still being barraged with irate denunciations of the 41 per cent pay increase it recently voted itself — from $30,000 to $42,500 a year.

Hundreds of indignant letters and derisive "bundles to Congress" are continuing to pour in from all over the country. The "bundles" contain old clothes and other discards.

Most of the lawmakers are discretely silent about this critical deluge. But not opponents of the hike. They are making no secret of the undiminished flood of outraged mail. They also are deriving a lot of "I told you so" satisfaction from it.

Graphically illustrative of the quantity and nature of these caustic blasts are the letters and "bundles" received in the past week by Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, veteran economy champion who led the floor fight against the pay boost. He made the only motion in the House on which a record vote was taken in an effort to block the increase — which automatically went into effect February 15.

Heavy mail
Gross has received some 25 "bundles" from Alabama, California, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas and Virginia. The contents of the derisive "bundles" range from old socks to used underwear, outer clothing and shoes.

Accompanying a "bundle" from Cincinnati, O., was a letter saying, "The enclosed shirt is right off the back of my husband. I am sending it because Congress is sure to get the shirt sooner or later anyway. Perhaps some of your money-grabbing colleagues can use it."

From Artesia, Calif., Gross received the following letter:

"I am deeply distressed by the terrible plight of many of our congressmen and senators who cannot eke out an existence on $30,000 a year plus generous fringe benefits. I am on social security ($66 a month), and my stipend seems inadequate, too. So I augment it by caring for four children while both parents work to cope with the never-ending inflation, rising welfare costs and increasing taxes."

"However, we are so moved by the hardships of our lawmakers that we wish to send a bundle to them. Please distribute it to the neediest congressmen, but not the beans. The beans are for Senator Dirksen, bless his little heart!"

"The shoes are worn, but they are still good enough to give a good boot to your colleagues who voted for this incredible grab, as well as being so generous in doubling the salary of the president to $200,000."

Gross has received hundreds of letters commending his determined, albeit unavailing, fight against the pay increase.

Sins of respectable form theme of church dramatic presentation

STROUDSBURG — The audience squirmed as the points hit home as the play "The Trial of Mary Ellis" progressed. Her sins were those which they recognized in themselves.

Mary Ellis, portrayed by Mrs. David High, considered herself a good Christian woman, devoted to her home and her family. She was being tried on charges of breaking the first, third, fourth, fifth and tenth commandments.

The prosecutor, played by Mrs. Harry Strawdinger, pointing out that the wages of sin are death, asked for the full penalty.

In putting supervising painters in redecorating her home before taking care of an ill relative, she was accused of putting her home before her God in the first commandment.

In saying the Lord's Prayer without meaning the words and in taking communion without expecting to become better, she was charged with taking the Lord's name in vain.

Even though she usually attended church, the fact that she occasionally missed it, often worked harder on Sunday than on weekdays, she was charged with not keeping the Sabbath holy.

In failing to make provisions for making a home for her parents and her husband's parents in case of need, she was charged with not honoring her parents.

The final charge was that she had coveted her neighbor's material things until her own home was comparable.

Although defended by the Defense Attorney, played by Mrs. George Sebring, as a fine upstanding woman, who attends church, believes in God and is conscientious about keeping house and the responsibility of bringing up her children, Mary Ellis is brought to acknowledge her guilt.

Through the intercession of Jesus, a role played by Mrs. Arthur Jensen, as a friend of the court, she is offered the gift of grace by the Supreme Being played by Mrs. Claude Arnold.

The role of bailiff was played by Mrs. Edward Evans; and Mrs. James Toner sang a solo with Mrs. Richard Seip as accompanist. Mrs. Robert Dahbert was in charge of the program.

Mrs. Thomas Metzgar presided at the meeting when Miss Beatrice Gorgy, chairman of needlework supply, announced the Spring Ingathering to be held March 5 at the Calvary United Methodist Church, Easton. Members planning to attend were asked to call the church office. The society will send a cash donation and a lap robe made by members.

Mrs. Merlin Ruit announced World Day of Prayer services for Friday, March 7 at 1:30 p.m. in the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church with the theme "Joining Together in Christ."

A rummage sale will be held in the lower floor of the church building on March 21 and 22 with Mrs. Ben Coolbaugh as chairman. World Banks are due at the March meeting.

Refreshments were served after the meeting with Mrs. Paul Edinger Sr. and Mrs. Nelson Westbrook as co-chairmen. The committee included Mrs. Sherdon Butz, Mrs. Harold Carlton, Mrs. John Pyle, Mrs. Paul Shiffer, Mrs. Fred Staples and Mrs. Frank Werkheiser.

Valentine party at PV Manor hosted by Juniors

STROUDSBURG — Guests at Pleasant Valley Manor were entertained at a Valentine Party by the Stroudsburg Junior Woman's Club on Tuesday night.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Oh well. We knew it wasn't Spring anyway. Drag out the boots and on we go. The Stroudsburg Methodist WSCS had an interesting program the other night in the dramatized form.

Sort of an indictment of all of us, who, because we don't murder, steal, swear or use four-letter words, think we're shining examples for the young to follow.

Speaking of shining examples, Dr. Richard Luce has enlisted his colleagues at the college in the Heart Fund Drive, what with Les' Rossi in charge of special events and Lois Payne, secretary to Dr. Sills, chairman of the fashion show, and even the students enlisted to help.

Helping somebody might very well be a good way for all of us to keep Lent. Forty days until Easter would be a wonderful lot of good deeds to put together.

And only 30 days until Spring, oh ye of little faith. I know the Delaware has frozen over again, and so has the thin skin of mud on the ground. Snow has covered the forsythia buds and the rhododendron leaves are still curled into tight spindles against the cold.

But the earth turns on, it's axis tilting slowly to the sun, and Spring will come. And the Spring sun will show up those winter-smudged windows faster than those of us laggards who are slower about Spring cleaning than Spring itself like to acknowledge.

Missionaries to speak in West End

BRODHEADSVILLE — A missionary husband and wife team who are native Pennsylvanians serving in Japan for the past six years, will be guest speakers on three separate occasions in the West End area on Sunday, March 2.

John Knoble and his wife, Barbara, will share their experiences with the community in the Stoffer Schoolhouse on Route 209 south, at 9:45 a.m.; the Kresgeville Convalescent Home at 2:30 p.m. and Timothy United Methodist Church, Middle Creek, at 7 p.m.

Knoble was born and raised in Easton and lived in Lancaster for some time. Prior to being commissioned by the Non-Sectarian Fellowship Church of Phillipsburg on Sept. 16, 1962, he had studied at the Lancaster School of the Bible.

Before he was called to the field as a missionary, Knoble was chef-manager of a restaurant in Easton and in March, 1961, after writing to the Board of Evangelical Alliance Mission of Wheaton, Ill., he was invited to an orientation and later commissioned.

He prepared himself as "Christ's Ambassador to Japan" at the Wayne State University in Michigan and in October, 1962, left for Japan, to conduct Bible Classes in English and English Language instruction in the Japan High Schools of the area while keeping an active visitation program.

Knoble met his wife, Barbara, in the field in Japan. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Horace Dean of Havertown. They were married in 1963.

Mrs. Knoble has devoted her time to translations and preparing material for teacher training courses in Japanese. She was responsible for writing the basic revision of the Evangelical Teacher Training Association Text which she started in 1965 and completed for publication in 1967.

John, Barbara, Stephen and Priscilla Knoble

The Japanese Christian College has solicited her aid in revising material from the United States, adapting illustrations and descriptions to fit the Japanese cultures and environment.

While on leave, the couple and their son and daughter are residing at 215 Washington Ave., Havertown, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Knoble have been corresponding with Mr.

and Mrs. Elwood Wetzel of Brodheadsville and will be guests at their home on April 24 during the Community Bible Study Hour conducted at the Wetzel residence.

The three speaking engagements for Sunday are open to all denominations.

Local church schedules film, supper

STROUDSBURG — Anyone who is alive to the possibilities of contemporary motion pictures is in for either a treat or a treatment, depending on his viewpoint, when he sees the film, "These Four Crazy Walls," Newman Cryer claims.

The much-heralded film will be shown at the Stroudsburg United Methodist Church, 547 Main Street, Sunday at 5:30 p.m. Members of the congregation will share the delights of a covered-dish supper and then view the film.

Following the showing of the film a discussion will be led by Mrs. William Fizzle. The public is invited to attend. If you wish, just bring your favorite dish to take its place in the smorgasbord. A nursery for infants is being arranged by Mrs. Harry Strawdinger and a special class for children will be conducted by Mrs. John Appel.

The event is being sponsored by the Council on Ministries of the church, in keeping with the quadrennial emphasis on "A New Church for a New World." The film depicts the struggle of a congregation in Casa View, Texas, as they seek to discover the real mission of the church.

Anyone who is asking questions about the relevance of the Gospel for today and the practical effectiveness of the church's mission will be interested in viewing this motion picture.

THIS MAIL MAN'S HELPER IS HIS CHURCH

"Hi ya Dad? I think I have that 'ship' you have been looking for to come in." "Hello, Mrs. Brown, I bet you wouldn't be interested in this letter from overseas!"

And so he goes, day after day, spreading a bit of sunshine and cheer to those on his mail route. He is more than just a carrier. He's an ambassador of good will, or if perchance the news he brings is bad news, he makes it a bit easier to bear with his understanding sympathy. "How can he always be so sunny? Doesn't he ever have a care?"

Yes, he does have cares but he has learned the secret that anyone can have for just the working at it. He has learned that there is really something practical to that famous statement that "he who would gain life must first lose it—lose it in service to others." It isn't just a pose assumed while he is on his route either. In the church that he attends regularly he gives of himself freely and thereby profits greatly. It is there that he has learned of the joy of giving, over receiving. Yes, his affiliation with the Church has a lot to do with his secret of noble living.

Railway's unused tunnels provided way for Turnpike

(Second of two parts)

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — There may never have been a Pennsylvania Turnpike if the old South Penn Railroad hadn't cut six tunnels straight through the Alleghenies in the 1880s.

The South Penn, then controlled by the New York Central, had made this move in a futile cut-throat effort to knock out the Pennsylvania Railroad. Before it laid any tracks, however, the South Penn gave up the venture.

A half century later, in the grip of the nation's worst depression, the abandoned tunnels were remembered — and the brainstorm came to use them, not for trains, but for an all-weather highway.

But the turnpike was born primarily to put people to work.

Even after it was authorized by the legislature, Burlein says, many snickered the project "was doomed to failure, that it wouldn't carry more than 600 cars daily."

They were wrong. Two weeks after it opened 26,000 vehicles traveled the road every day.

Another who had faith was an obscure Massachusetts innkeeper, Howard Johnson, who agreed to run the food concessions along the route. He parlayed that foresight into a coast-to-coast restaurant and motel fortune.

Oil companies also prospered, and since 1940 the state has collected more than $50 million in liquid fuel taxes.

After the Pennsylvania opened in 1940, and proved to be a money-maker other states quickly jumped on the toll road bandwagon.

The New Jersey Turnpike, connecting in the east, opened in 1947—joining the 200 miles that swept in from the original Carlisle terminus.

The New York Thruway started operating in 1948, the Ohio in 1952—opening through traffic to the west—followed by the Indiana in 1956 and the Illinois in 1959. Then in the 60's came the Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Maryland and Delaware.

You can now go from New York to Chicago, from Washington to Boston, from Cleveland to Philadelphia—all the way without hitting a traffic signal, once you roll onto the expressways. The only stops are at the toll booths.

And smack in the middle are the Pennsylvania's winding ribbons of cement, for nearly two decades and the keystone of the east-west traffic.

Then late in 1957, the Northeast Extension was opened. It cost $180 million — or nearly three times the much longer, original section. And it's been a longtime loser, the commission says.

The Extension earns only 50 per cent of its bond interest rate after operating expenses. But the east-west section, connecting Ohio with New Jersey, takes up the slack and shows a fat profit.

How well the east-west section has done, it's evident from the financial statement: The 1948 bonds, due to be paid off in 1988, were retired 23 years ahead of schedule.

"That's the reason we didn't have to raise tolls," says the Turnpike commission chairman.

But present revenues aren't enough to handle the proposed modernization and correct the problems which plague the road from one end to the other—deteriorating paving, the too narrow medial strip, the 12-foot lanes, the 10-foot shoulders.

Burlein says this was due to the original days of the turnpike when it was built in penny-pinching times, with penny-pinching ideas.

He acknowledges that complete modernization of the turnpike would entail enormous cost and still there would be keen competition from free interstate highways. Pennsylvania was 16 years ahead of the nation in the building of its interstate highway system, Burlein says, but it can't stand still.

Despite the federal government's huge injection of road-building cash, Burlein insists turnpikes still are very much alive.

"Free federal roads didn't wipe out turnpikes," he says.

"The Turnpike facility is not only going to grow in sophistication and improvement, but it will grow in usage.

"In order to construct the maximum number of superhighways that motorists demand today, and escape more taxes, the future may see more toll roads built."

Unsolicited goods target of proposal

HARRISBURG — A bill aimed at ending the delivery of unsolicited goods, sponsored by Rep. Russell Kowalskyshyn, Northampton, has been moved to the floor of the House of Representatives for action.

The bill was the first measure reported out by the new House Consumer Protection Committee, which includes Kowalskyshyn as a member.

The bill would end the delivery of unsolicited goods by simply making them a gift to the recipient who could dispose of them in any matter without obligation. The recipient would have no obligation to return the goods or to pay for them.

Motivated after an Illinois law, the measure is aimed at discouraging unsolicited merchandise, particularly through the mails.

"Many consumers feel that they have an obligation to pay for anything delivered to their house, whether solicited or not," Kowalskyshyn said.

"In addition to the benefit to the consumers, the bill also would stop the heavy load of goods being moved by the U.S. mail, resulting in the Post Office running a $1 billion deficit."

Mansion in Cuba now curio

VARADERO, Cuba (AP) — In Xanadu did Kubla Khan (and millionaire Irene Du Pont) a stately pleasure dome decree. Which the Castro government has taken over and turned into a restaurant for the common people.

Now hundreds of visitors—Cuban women in hair curlers, perspiring Russians and sun-toughened exemplary sugar cane cutters who have earned a visit—tramp through the 20-room summer mansion to see how one of the richest of Americans used to live. Most seem more impressed by the chance of a decent meal than by the surroundings.

Taking his clue from Samuel Coleridge's famous poem, Du Pont constructed his summer home just ahead of the crash of 1929. He named it Xanadu and had Coleridge's poem emblazoned on macramé velvet tapestry in the main dining room where it still hangs.

Old friends credit the man who until his death in 1964 was the patriarch of the famous Du Pont family of Wilmington, Del., with pioneering the development of the Varadero peninsula, still Cuba's most advanced resort area.

They say the former head of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Co. Inc. hoped some of his friends in the United States would build alongside his 450-acre estate. But the depression ruined the idea, they add.

Xanadu, however, opened the peninsula to later resort development that came to a halt when Fidel Castro took over Cuba in January 1959. Du Pont, who was in his 90s then, never returned. The government took over the house and grounds in November 1961. "Buss (Du Pont) was never told the government had his house," says a longtime friend.

The old Du Pont grounds run for about 10 miles on a narrow sliver of land. Friends in Havana say Du Pont bought the land about 1926 for approximately $60,000.

Local legend has it that he selected the scrub brush peninsula by drawing a line that intersected the northernmost landed area of Cuba—Varadero. The resort 85 miles east of Havana boasts Cuba's whitest beaches and clearest water.

The house is constructed mostly from native limestone and splashed with Cuban mahogany and paneling. The government has kept it in reasonably good shape.

♣ Q 8

1. You can guarantee the contract 100 per cent by winning the club in your hand, cashing the A-K of spades and K-A of diamonds, and leading a low heart from dummy to your nine.

When North wins with the king or queen he finds himself endplayed. A spade return would give you a ruff and discard, and a heart return would give you a free finesse.

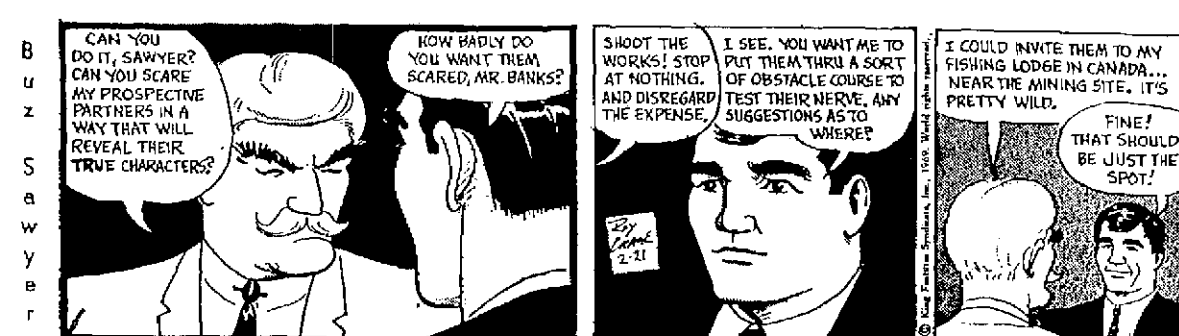

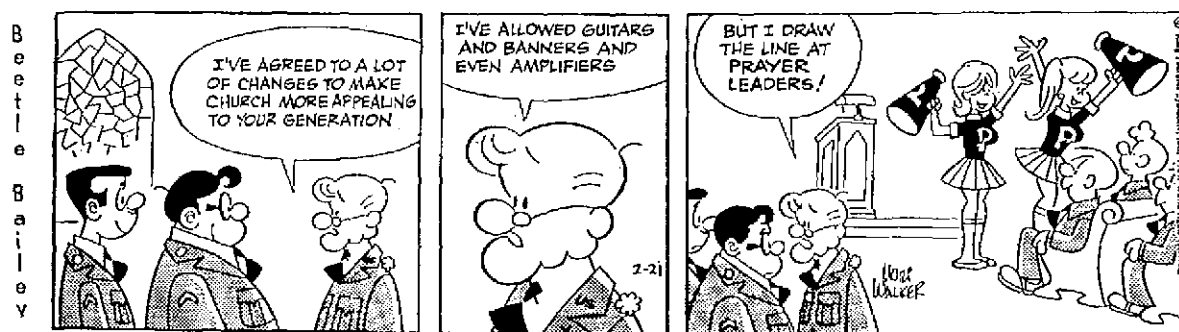

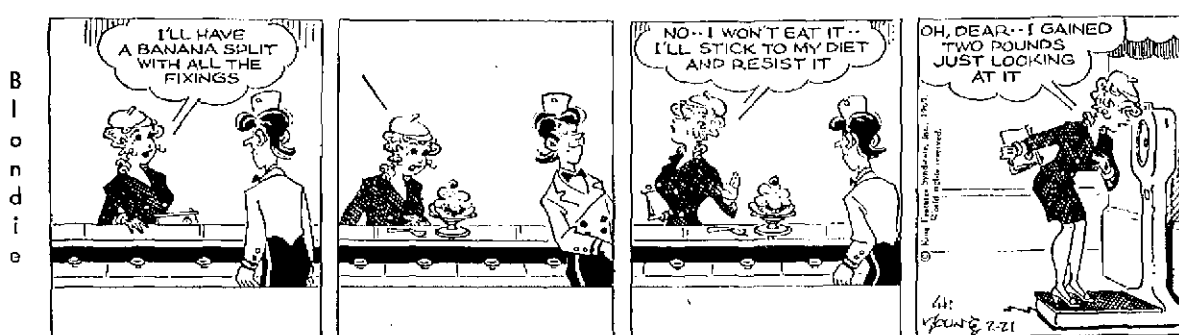

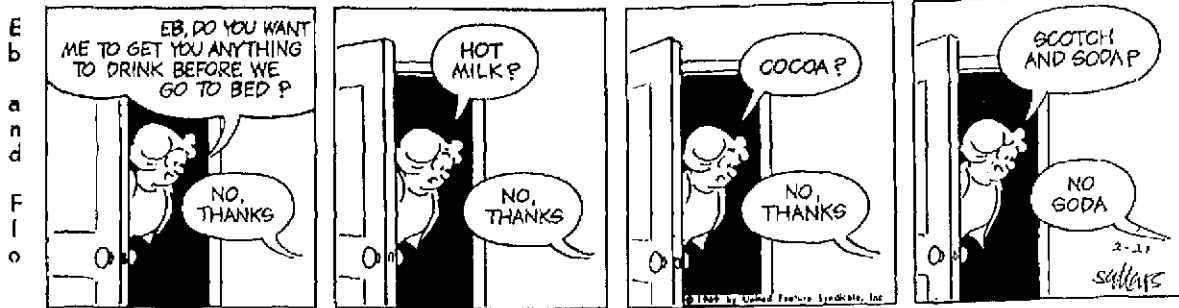

North's only other possible return, a diamond, is bound to yield at least one extra diamond trick in dummy, regardless of how the adverse diamonds are divided.

2. Win with the king and return a low club towards the queen. If North has the king, he can do no better than win it and lead another heart. Take this in dummy with the ace, cash the queen of clubs, play a diamond to the ace, and discard dummy's remaining heart on your ace of clubs. You make either ten or eleven tricks, depending on whether or not the trump finesse succeeds.

Of course, it may turn out that South has the king of clubs, in which case your effort to establish an extra club trick will fail. But even so, you still have a good chance to make the contract. Assume South takes the queen of clubs with the king and returns a heart. Win in dummy with the ace, lead the jack of spades, and finesse. It is true that if the finesse loses, you go down, but at least you've given yourself two chances to make the contract by playing for North to have the king of clubs or for South to have the king of spades.

It would be wrong to win the opening lead in dummy and take an immediate trump finesse. This would give you only one chance of making the contract, and, obviously, two chances are better than one.

FFA celebrates 41st year

Meet mod, mod Future Farmer members

By FRED WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Typical of the young people of the country are the members of a nationwide organization which is starting its 41st year. Each year since the beginning of the Future Farmers of America, every school system which sponsors a chapter has gained from the inspiration and accomplishments of these high school youths.

It was in Kansas City, Mo., in 1928 that a small number of high school students met for the first time as a group for the purpose of starting an organization especially for farm youths.

Since then, the FFA, the right arm of the vocational agriculture department of education, has grown to a membership of a half-million boys in Future Farmers chapters through the fifty states and Puerto Rico.

The Monroe County school system recognizes two active chapters during this week which has been designated National FFA Week. They are Pocono Chapter of the Pocono Mountain School District and Pohopoco Chapter of the Pleasant Valley School district.

The Bangor Chapter of Bangor Area High School in Northampton county is included in the regional area of FFA chapters which includes Monroe, Northampton, Carbon, Luzerne and Lackawanna counties.

Only these young men can tell you that agriculture is not a static subject and that they are part of a new generation of agriculturists who accept the great problems, decisions and awesome facts facing the agriculture scene.

Participation by members at local, state and national levels within the organization is the basic plan. An FFA member begins his career in agriculture as a student of vocational agriculture in high school.

His classroom instruction is directly related to the occupational experience program that he pursues. Through FFA, instruction is extended to provide opportunities for the member to demonstrate his leadership ability, his knowledge of agriculture, to develop his skills and prepare himself as an adult leader, by doing, learning, earning and serving his home, school and community.

The high-school programs in agriculture now offer programs which are updated and prepare for job entry as graduating seniors. It is not just an obsolete course for farm boys, but a practical and technical field related to the vast agricultural industry and businesses.

Production agriculture subjects are still emphasized in the Bangor High School besides adapting to the new agribusiness related courses.

Education in agriculture is more than learning how to farm. Students today prepare themselves for professions in agriculture education, forestry, dairy science and agriculture engineering.

The teaching of agricultural knowledge and skills needed by employees involved in the use of agricultural resources with particular emphasis on the resort recreational vo-ag to practical occupational training, using local resources.

This is a program of Pocono Mountain Vo-Ag Dept.

At Pleasant Valley, the diminishing need for production agriculture has called other subject innovations and a program of occupational training has been incorporated to provide on the job training for students in agriculture.

The yearly schedule for the local chapters is an active one. Since the start of the school year in September, the local chapters have participated in leadership training school, at State College; Junior Dairy Show at Harrisburg; Electric Motors Workshop, Scranton; National FFA Convention in Kansas City; Regional Leadership Training Conference for chapter officers in Mt. Pocono; Hunter Safety Program and Rifle Shoot at Pocono Mountain U.S.

Also, Pennsylvania Young Farmers Assn. Convention in Williamsport; Kiwanis Luncheon honoring FFA boys in Stroudsburg; State FFA Winter convention at Harrisburg and currently National FFA Week celebration.

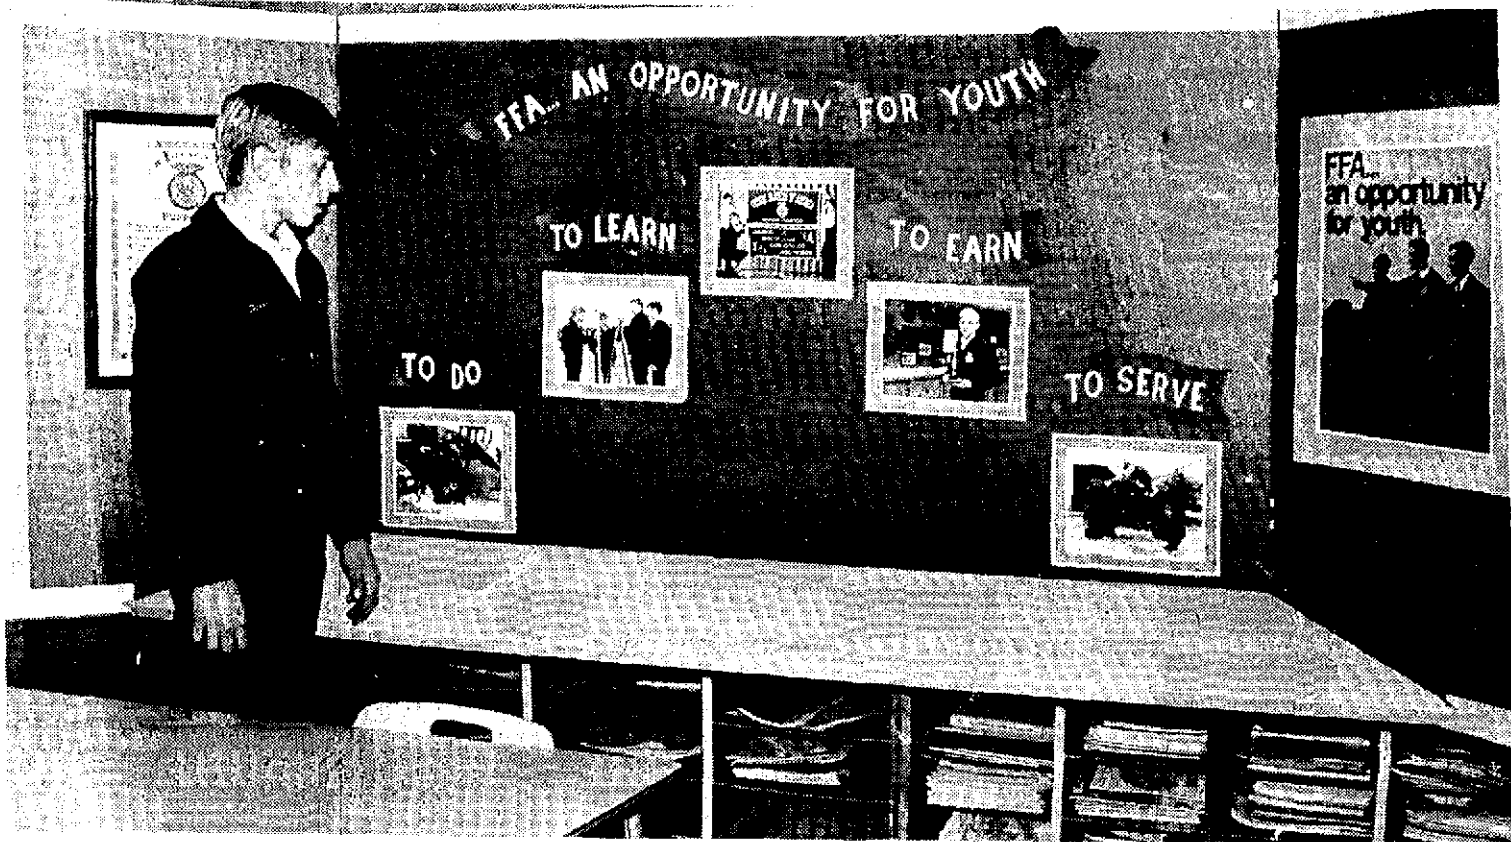

Among the coming events will be individual chapter banquets during April and May; area Public Speaking Contest at Pleasant Valley High School on April 2; area Parliamentary Speaking Contest at Pleasant Valley on April 23; regional contests at Tunkhannock on April 28; Horticultural judging program at Bethlehem on May 2; Interview and salesmanship judging program at Pleasant Valley on May 7; Forestry and Agricultural Mechanics judging program at West Hazleton on May 9.

During the summer months, activities continue. Annual FFA Summer Convention, June 25 to 27 and participation in the Plainfield Farmers Fair, Blue Valley Farm Show and West End Fair, during July and August.

Motto

"Learning to do
Doing to learn
Earning to live
Living to serve"

Each chapter displays its own crafted exhibit relating FFA youth at work within the various vocational-agriculture departments of high schools. Similar exhibits are being displayed nationwide, within schools, banks and other community businesses. Here, Philip Poliskiewicz, a sophomore at Bangor Area High School and member of the Bangor Chapter reveals his chapter's display.

Lawrence Koehler, FFA member and junior vo-ag student at Pleasant Valley is one of the few remaining students who chose production agriculture. He works on the home farm of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Altemose of Gilbert. As a project he is raising his own 15-month-old dairy heifer.

Forestry management, landscaping and plant nursery operation are among the related occupational interests studied by FFA members and students of the vo-ag department at Pocono Mountain High School. Jim Hay, left, and Dennis Schmoeyer, sophomores, exercise their interests in such courses.

Vo-ag students and FFA members, Francis Weiss, left, and Glenn Martin, of Pleasant Valley High School, repair and touch-up a side-delivery hay rake. Farm shop, and mechanics is a necessary course of instruction and includes tractor engine and other heavy machinery maintenance.

Conservation practices and techniques and some of the tools used to determine them are part of the vocational-agriculture program at Bangor Area High School. Lawrence Parvin (center) demonstrates use of the level to measure contours, with FFA members, Philip Poliskiewicz (left) and Steve Ott.

Underground utility lines bring appeal

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg Development Corp. has filed an appeal in Monroe County Court to a ruling involving placement of utility lines underground which was recently ordered made by the East Stroudsburg Zoning Board of Adjustment.

In January, the board decided that all electric and other utility lines in the firm's Greenview Apartment complex on Green Tree Drive had to be placed underground from the point of entry onto the property. This included both primary and secondary lines.

The appeal was filed, the firm said, because a municipality has no authority to regulate the installation of public utility power lines since this is under the exclusive jurisdiction of the Public Utility Commission.

The company, headed by Robert Kolenberg and Solomon Koppelman, Easton developers, also charged in its appeal that the zoning requirement demanded by East Stroudsburg is based on aesthetic consideration and is not a valid exercise of zoning power.

E.S. board cites density in refusing building plan

EAST STROUDSBURG — An expanded development plan for the Green Valley View apartments on Green Tree Drive was rejected Thursday night by the East Stroudsburg Zoning Board of Adjustment.

The expanded plan proposes construction of 262 new apartment units in Town House and Apartment building complexes.

The Zoning Board of Adjustment rejected the plan because the "design exceeds the density rating."

Basically, the Zoning Board of Adjustment, underscored a decision made by the East Stroudsburg Planning and Zoning Commission.

The Zoning Commission, in a written statement which will be given to Zoning Officer Donald Gage, stated:

"We have found the proposed plan too densely developed. We would like to see an imaginative plan developed that would include multi-family, town houses and single family residences.

"The traffic patterns and parking patterns are poorly developed and do not permit good circulation to adjacent lands which could be developed within the future.

"In addition, more structures of the same design already under construction would create a large monotonous pattern.

"The designations of steep slopes as open space does not meet the requirements of the ordinance whose objectives is to preserve such open space for possible recreational uses and to reduce a crowding effect."

Robert Kohlenberg and Solomon Koppelman, both of Easton, have already constructed seven town house structures.

The developers, who had formed the Stroudsburg Development Corp., propose to construct 14 town houses with 70 units and 12 apartment houses with 16 units each for a total 192 apartments. The proposed units would total 262. The existing units and the ones proposed total 374 units.

The Zoning Board of Adjustment was somewhat upset over the plan because it primarily contained almost no open space.

Carl Smith, chairman, said that the developers — in their new plan — have drawn the town houses in an area where they previously said would be retained as open space.

The proposed plan shows 22.5 acres of open space, but Leon Zacher, chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission, said the land is on a slope and cannot be used — unless people want to run up and down a hill.

The board members officially decided that the developers should submit another plan — one with less density and more open space.

The Zoning Board suggested that the density be 10.5 units per acre. The Planning Commission will require this density in its revised zoning ordinance.

Zacher said professionals had called the proposed plan "absolutely frightful."

Businesses, resort continue support of Vo-Tech school

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Area School Board which approved the proposed Monroe County Vocational-Technical School Wednesday received letters backing the proposed trade school from 11 area firms and one resort.

Most of these firms and the resort had written similar letters requesting the Pocono Mountain School Board to approve the vo-tech plan during Pocono Mountain's school board meeting earlier this month.

The 11 area firms were Pocono Foundry and Machine Co. Inc., Stroudsburg; Herbert David Co., Stroudsburg; Shaw Insulator Co., Stroudsburg; Heico Inc., Delaware Water Gap; International Boiler Works, East Stroudsburg; Sun Litho-Print, Inc., East Stroudsburg; McGraw-Edison Power Systems Division, East Stroudsburg.

Also J. H. Reinhardt and Co., Mountaintop; Holland Thread Co. Inc., Stroudsburg; Oiljak Manufacturing Company, Inc., Stroudsburg; Huffman Lawton Co. Inc., Marshalls Creek.

The resort was Skytop Lodge, Inc., Skytop.

The board hired three teachers and accepted the resignations of 10 teachers, six of whom are retiring and four leaving for personal reasons.

Hired were Mrs. Marjorie O. Beck, junior high school English at a salary of $6,700 a year; William B. Gibson Jr., junior high science, $5,600; Barbara L. Evans, elementary, to begin Sept., 1969, at the beginning salary.

Teachers retiring were Mrs. Myrtle Hilliard and Mrs. Cora R. Stoeckel, both elementary; John DeVivo, industrial arts; Lillian Stark, secondary social studies; Gertrude F. Welsh, secondary mathematics, and Mrs. Dorothy Detrick, elementary.

Those teachers resigning for personal reasons were Mrs. Marilyn A. Dennis, elementary music; Patricia Ungemach, elementary music; Mrs. Suzanne Judy, elementary.

Mrs. Alma Weber was hired as a library clerk at $3,120 a year to replace Mrs. Evelyn W. Stevens.

After the board meeting newly appointed assistant superintendent in charge of pupil services, public relations, John Kupiec, outlined the district's Educational Media Center created by the board in August.

Car, truck collide during snow

HONESDALE — A small car collided with a State highway department cinder truck Thursday morning in the Borough of Waymart on Rt. 6, during the last hour of a heavy snowfall.

According to Honesdale State Police, the cinder truck, operated by Peter Podunajec, 36, of Waymart R.D. 2 was in the eastbound lane and backing across the westbound lane of Rt. 6 to load his truck from a cinder supply.

The car, operated by Henry Munger, 22, of Honesdale, was approaching from the north but could not see the truck. The crest of a hill blocked his view, and he collided with the truck.

Met-Ed had failure

STROUDSBURG — A power failure Wednesday afternoon which interrupted service to some 100 Stroudsburg residents and businesses, was due to a short-circuit in a primary line of Metropolitan-Edison Co.

A primary line came into contact with a tree along Rt. 611 (Foxtown Hill). The tree created a short circuit and the wire burned through, dropped to the ground and a grass fire followed.

The failure had been attributed to a power line of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co.

Horsewoman seeks jockey license

Bushkill girl nears starting gate

BUSHKILL — If everything goes right for a 20-year-old Bushkill woman, she will be the nation's second girl jockey—a jockey.

Carol Alden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Alden of Bushkill, has applied for a jockey's license in Maryland and New Jersey.

The Maryland Racing Commission will hold a hearing in the near future to decide whether or not to give the young award-winning horsewoman a jockey's license.

Carol, who has been riding since she was 10 years old, will be represented by Montgomery County Attorney Edward McElean during the license hearing.

The five-foot, two-inch blonde, who weighs 101 pounds, is currently an equestrian champion having won 260 ribbons in the last three years. She has competed in Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New York.

Carol, who hopes to acquire a jockey's license in Maryland, will be only the second woman to have such a license in the United States.

On February 11, Diane Crump, 20, made racing history when she became the nation's first female jockey.

Carol, a graduate of St. Matthew's Parochial School in East Stroudsburg, was being considered for the United States Equestrian Team during the Olympics in Mexico.

"She was all packed to go," her father said, but then she was disqualified.

Well known for riding English hunters and jumpers, Carol is currently riding race horses at a breeding and training center near Lake Ariel.

Born in Asbury Park, N.J., the slender young woman set an unofficial jumping record in Long Island when she jumped her horse seven feet, four inches.

A graduate of Merrywood College in Scranton, Carol went to New York upon graduation and rode in St. James, L.I., where she also taught riding and rode professionally.

The career horsewoman will go to Montreal, Canada, on March 2, where she will ride hunter and jumper at the winter fair.

Her father, who owns Mountaintop Estates, has nine horses, many of them former race horses.

Monroe commissioner sees defeat of sprinkler proposal

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioner Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis Thursday said that the proposed legislation calling for the mandatory installation of sprinkler systems in county homes may never get off the ground.

Her statement came after attending a public hearing in Harrisburg Wednesday at which approximately 300 people appeared to protest the legislation.

Mrs. Shukaitis said that in attendance were primarily people representing private homes for the elderly along with county commissioners and other organizations opposed to the proposed law.

If the law were to be passed, Monroe County Commissioners estimate that it would cost the county between $100,000 to $125,000 to carry out at Pleasant Valley Manor.

However, said Mrs. Shukaitis, the primary point brought out in the testimony and statements at the hearing were concerned with the fact that a sprinkler system was not the best way to offer protection to elderly people living in the homes.

According to her, the cost of such a law to counties and private homes was secondary, as far as the outright protest was concerned.

Mrs. Shukaitis said that if further protection is to be afforded to the elderly, it should come in the form of heat sensors or detectors.

In many of the statements made Wednesday, it was pointed out that sensors are a warning device. They are activated by heat before it generates into an actual fire, whereas sprinklers are not usually activated until a fire has already broken out.

Another point voiced was that sprinklers were unsafe in that they can cause panic which would be injurious in many ways. Testimony also included the fact that some sprinkler heads in the systems do not always go off.

Mrs. Shukaitis said that some people expressed the feeling that sprinkler systems were only properly preservatives rather than life-saving.

The reasoning behind these feelings was that if they were a life-saving device, sprinklers would certainly have been required in hospitals where patients are less ambulatory than in most homes for the elderly.

She said that many people wanted to know why some facilities, such as hospitals, institutions for the mentally retarded and disturbed, were excluded from the proposed law.

She added that speakers were also questioning the reasoning behind the exclusion of the Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton areas from the proposed legislation.

Mrs. Shukaitis said that many at the hearing made statements which expressed concern over the dangers of smoke inhalation rather than fire in the homes.

Whatever the primary concern of the nearly 300 people who appeared at the seven hour hearing, almost everyone who had a prepared statement mentioned the cost factor of complying with the legislation, if it were to be passed.

Mrs. Shukaitis said that those who spoke in behalf of private nursing homes were very concerned because of the fact that they pass on the costs to their guests, a great many of whom have only social security to rely on for incomes and sometimes even less.

Many expressed fears of having to close down their private homes because of the overall cost demands.

For those speaking in behalf of county homes, many said they may be forced to close because the counties could not raise taxes any higher than their present rates.

Those counties included Potter, Mifflin, Crawford and Venango.

Other counties expressed the desire to keep from passing another burden to the shoulders of the taxpayers, who would have to pay for the costs of the systems.

A Beaver County representative said it would cost their county $214,000 for a sprinkler system plus $60,000 for a water tower. It would cost Berks County $395,000 for systems in their county home and TB sanatorium.

A Dauphin County spokesman said it would cost their county $500,000 to $800,000 to install a system in their home.

Mrs. Shukaitis said the hearing was a very interesting experience and that everyone who read a statement had one point or another to make about the opposition to the proposed law.

She added that she sincerely doubts if the legislation would be passed, because she felt that the six members from the Department of Labor and Industry Industrial Board who held the hearing were made aware in no uncertain terms of the strong feelings against the sprinkler law.

County budgeted $95,926 to MCCB

STROUDSBURG — The cost to the county for the operation of the Monroe County Children's Bureau in 1968 was $95,926.

The information was contained in a report to the Monroe County Commissioners Thursday from Melvin Sweeney, Director II of the county Children's Bureau.

The report was a copy of the annual report of expenditures which is submitted to the state.

Sweeney said that $170,000 was budgeted for the bureau in 1968, but only $154,651 was actually spent. Of the actual expenditures, the state reimbursed the county $38,927.

Sweeney also presented to the commissioners the bureau's new Homemaker policy which outlines the services available under the homemaker plan.

The policy was the work of Mrs. Ruth Pond, chairman of the Children's Bureau Service Committee.

Commission Chairman Elwood Hintze reported that the 1969 budget for Pleasant Valley Manor is $150,000 greater than the 1968 budget and the budget is $190,000 over what was actually spent in 1968.

Hintze said the budget was presented to the advisory board of the manor.

He stated that the main reasons for the increase in the manor's budget were due to the construction of the sewage treatment plant which is slated to be completed this year and the salary increases which were granted to manor employees.

After his report to the commissioners, Hintze added that he hoped that in about one year, the advisory board will be able to help make up the manor's budget.

In salary board action, David A. Haney, Stroudsburg R.D. I, was officially granted a salary of $180 bi-weekly as a deputy county assessor.

Haney had been recommended and accepted by the commissioners at their Feb. 13 meeting. Salary board action was necessary to make the hiring official.

Haney will replace Robert Stem who has been transferred to the Re-evaluation branch of the assessor's office.

Dr. Evan C. Reese, Chairman of the Monroe County Republican Party, requested that outside registration be made available in Mount Pocono, Barrett Township, Chestnut Hill Township and East Stroudsburg during the last month of registration.

He also requested that the courthouse be open for registration one night per week during that same period.

This request was tabled until the county Democratic chairman can be reached to see if he is agreeable to such an arrangement.

The Monroe County General Hospital submitted a request for a $2,000 increase over the 1968 budget. Their request is to the claim that there has been an increase in costs of services offered at the hospital.

In 1968, the county allocated $5,500 to the hospital. They would like $7,500.

The commissioners announced the resignation of Al Powell from his position as machine operator for the Stroudsburg Second Ward election board.

Mystery surrounds shooting

MOUNT POCONO — An autopsy conducted Thursday afternoon did not immediately establish whether Mrs. Sara R. Frantz of Mt. Pocono, died of a self-inflicted wound but verified that death was due to a gunshot wound to the body.

Mrs. Frantz, a 39-year-old divorcee, was found shot to death in the bedroom of her home, 76 Pocono Blvd. (Rt. 611), early Wednesday night.

According to Daniel G. Warner, chief deputy coroner, time of death was approximated shortly after noon or early afternoon.

Authorities are awaiting for laboratory reports of the autopsy and would not elaborate further on the nature of her death.

State Trooper John J. Kinsel, Mt. Pocono State Police, and Mt. Pocono Police Chief James Carey are heading the investigation.

Police called

Police at the Mt. Pocono substation said they received the initial call of the death at 7:15 p.m. from the victim's sister, Mrs. Jean Roebber of 113 W. Broad St., Stroudsburg.

Police said the body was found shortly before 7 p.m. by David Piazza of Mt. Pocono, a friend of the victim. Piazza then notified the sister in Stroudsburg.

Police did not identify the weapon but reported that four types of guns were taken from the bedroom and are being held for ballistics tests.

According to Warner, Mrs. Frantz underwent a spine fusion operation and as a result had been under medication. Tests are being made to determine whether medication was an apparent influence.

Philip H. Williams, Monroe County district attorney, said he was advised of the incident Wednesday night and is also awaiting results of the autopsy.

Dr. E. O. Hendrick of Mt. Pocono, who had been treating Mrs. Frantz, pronounced the victim dead in her home.

TAD employe

Mrs. Frantz began work at the Tobyhanna Army Depot in April, 1964, as a switchboard operator after having been employed at the Philadelphia Naval Base. She became a switchboard supervisor, then a clerk-typist and at the time of her death was a property disposal clerk.

Mrs. Frantz had lived in the Mt. Pocono area prior to her Philadelphia job.

She was born in Mountaintop, the daughter of Bessie Z. Roberts of Mountaintop, and the late Frederick Roberts.

She was a member of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

She is survived by her mother; two sons, Clinton C. Frantz III, East Stroudsburg, and David F. Frantz, Allentown; two sisters, Mrs. Loren Treible, East Stroudsburg, and Mrs. George Kochera, Swiftwater.

Services will be held Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home, Stroudsburg, with the Rev. Harold C. Eaton officiating.

Burial will be in Laurelwood Cemetery, Stroudsburg. There will be no visitation.

Five-inch snowfall hits area

STROUDSBURG — An average of five inches of snow fell in the Monroe County area during a 17-hour period between 3 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday. Total snowfall for February is 13 inches.

William B. Hagerty, U. S. Weather Bureau reporter at Neola, gave the official readings for the area. Compared to last year, this date, the snowfall is considerably higher but not up to the 34 inch fall in February 1967.

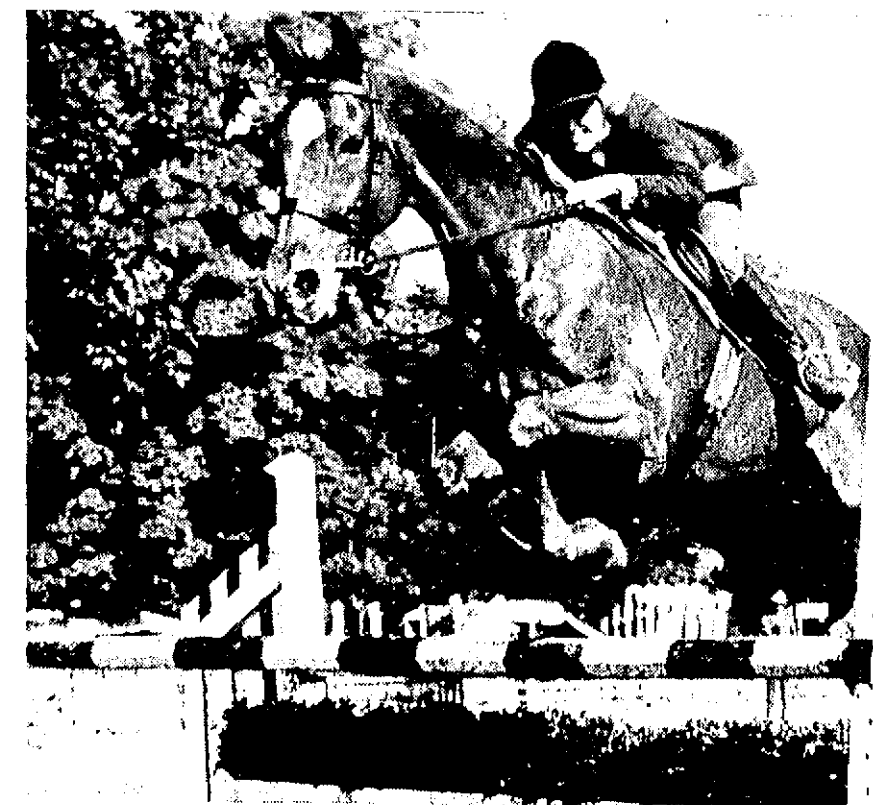

Last year was dry in comparison, Hagerty said. Total snowfall for February last year was only four inches with the highest accumulation of one inch during one period on Feb. 20.

Snowfall for March 1967 was 38 inches.

The recent snow was the greatest accumulation in a given period for February. According to recorded snowfall from Hagerty, two inches fell on Feb. 2, two inches on Feb. 5; four inches on Feb. 9.

State highway, township and borough road crews were finally able to catch up to clear the roads by Thursday afternoon.

Many social and business group engagements were cancelled or postponed and some schools were closed.

Carol Alden of Bushkill rides a jumper during one of her many award-winning hunter and jumping participations. She is seeking a jockey's license in Maryland.

Players ask federal government to be pinch-hitter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The federal government was asked to step to the plate in a pinch-hitter's role Thursday in an effort to resolve the dispute between major league baseball players and the club owners over the pension plan.

The request for help from the Federal Mediation and Conciliatory Service came from the Major League Baseball Players Association. The plea for federal intervention came amid signs that the players boycott of spring training camps was only a partial success.

Four more training camps opened Thursday in Florida and Arizona and all reported higher than expected turnouts of player personnel.

Frank Brown, regional director of the Mediation and Conciliatory Service, said he received a wire from the players association saying talks between the players and owners had reached an impasse and asking intervention.

Brown said he had invited the two warring factions to meet with him and mediator Kenneth Moffett at 2 p.m. Monday.

The players association quickly accepted the invitation but there was no immediate word from legal counsel for the owners. However, the owners are not legally bound to submit to federal arbitration.

Brown said it wasn't mandatory for the owners to appear but he hopes for and expects their cooperation. "It is very rare for an invited party in a labor dispute to decline an invitation from the federal mediator," he said.

The players association is trying to get a larger portion of radio and television revenue for its pension fund.

The owners made an offer Monday to increase the players pension package to $5.3 million a year, compared to the $6.5 million yearly that the players are seeking. The players association turned down the latest owners proposal.

The dispute threatens to curtail spring training, but the owners have vowed to open the 1969 season on schedule with whatever players are on hand.

The strike threat is the second major confrontation between players and owners since the post-World War II dispute in the Pittsburgh Pirates organization.

That dispute centered around efforts to form a players union and the Pirates even took a strike vote which failed to carry the required three-fourths vote. The Pirates subsequently rejected by a 15-3 vote a proposal to designate the American Baseball Players Guild as their bargaining agent. Bob Murphy led the players' fight against owner William Benswanger in 1946.

Veteran players from several clubs began reporting in Florida Wednesday even though Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, said in New York that 22 of the 24 players' representatives had voted to reject the owners latest offer.

Four clubs, the St. Louis Cardinals, Cincinnati Reds and expansion teams Kansas City Royals and Seattle Pilots all opened training camp Thursday.

The Reds opened camp at Tampa, Fla., and relief pitcher Clay Carroll was the only player on the regular roster reporting. However, Manager Dave Bristol expected a large number of players from the Reds' minor league rosters.

Carroll, who came to the Reds last year in the trade that also brought Tony Cloninger from Atlanta in exchange for right-hander Mill Pappas, said he has signed with the Reds and is "ready to play ball."

The Royals conduct their first workout today and a team spokesman said the club anticipated "a pretty good turnout" at the camp at Fort Myers, Fla.

The Cardinals opened camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., and the Seattle club will hold its workouts at Tempe, Ariz.

Pittsburgh shortstop Gene Alley and starting catcher Jerry May were among the Pirate players defying the players boycott as they reported for the first day of training at the club's new base at Bradenton, Fla.

A total of 27 of the 35 players invited to camp arrived and went through training sessions. Missing were the Pirates' established pitchers—Bob Veale, Jim Bunning, Steve Blass and Tommie Sisk—as well as Ronnie Kline and Luke Walker.

The New York Yankees held their first batting practice at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with 11 players participating. Manager Ralph Houk was absent as he left camp to attend funeral services for Leland S. MacPhail III, son of Yankee General Manager Lee MacPhail. Young MacPhail was killed in an automobile accident in Pennsylvania last Monday.

Fritz Peterson, one of the team's top pitchers last season, dropped by to discuss contract terms with the team. Peterson

A necessary ingredient

NEW YORK — With more intelligence than common sense a few of the baseball ball brass reacted petulantly to the possibility of a player boycott of spring training until pension demands were met. They assumed a who-needs-'em attitude that is so obviously ridiculous it's just like whistling up the wind tunnel.

"If we can't use major leaguers," they said, "we'll fill up our rosters with minor leaguers."

And sell this Ersatz package to the fans? It's too silly for words. Even at the height of the dispute between owners and players over principle and principal, it was the emptiest of threats. The immortal words of Casey Stengel still hold true. In a rhapsodic moment of exultation at the winning of a World Series, he said it all.

"I couldn't have done it without the players," said O'Casey, magnanimously giving credit where credit is due.

Without trying to distinguish between the rights of the avaricious and plutocratic owners and the rights of the avaricious and plutocratic ball players in their battle of high finance, an observer has to come to one inescapable conclusion. The necessary ingredient to a big league operation is a big league athlete — 600 of them to be exact.

Not all may qualify entirely but at least that's the general idea.

A quarter of a century ago, a give or take a year, the majors were stripped of talent by World War II. Virtually every name star in the sport was in the services and only pseudo big leaguers kept the game going. They were too young or too old. Or they were 4-F with physical disabilities. The St. Louis Browns even had a one-armed outfielder named Pete Gray. He batted .218 one handed and he was deft enough in the field, cleverly slucking his glove to make throws.

The Brooklyn Dodgers had a 16-year old shortstop named Tommy Brown, nicknamed Buckshot. Whenever a ball was batted in his direction, all the fans behind first base instinctively ducked behind their seats because Tommy's throw was odds-on to land in that general area.

The Cincinnati Reds produced a 14-year old lefthanded pitcher, Joe Nuxhall, who was bombed in his debut. However, the lefthanded schoolboy eventually learned his trade and became a valuable functionary in his more mature years.

Yet the big leagues did not have to apologize for the inferior ball players on their payrolls because there was a war on and understanding fans accepted the situation for what it was. If there were no complaints, there was a deep yearning for the day when "the real ball players" would return. Hope started to surge midway through the 1945 season when the early birds into the armed forces were the early birds out.

Bobby Feller had a chance to flimber up his arm after four years of Navy inactivity in time to set a new strikeout record the next season. Hank Greenberg left the China-Indian Burma theater in time to win a pennant for the Detroit Tigers with a homer in the final game. Others filtered back in ever increasing numbers.

By spring training of 1946 the real big leaguers, the pros, were joyously flexing their muscles — Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter, Timmy Lincecum, Johnny Mize and — but why bother to recite the roll? All the stars were back and baseball took a tremendous upward leap.

Not until then, however, did the average fan realize what an Ersatz product had been foisted on him during the interim. It had happened gradually from Pearl Harbor on and not until 1944 was the bottom of the barrel being scraped. The whole deal was dictated by expedience. That's why it was accepted. Furthermore it proved an old Branch Rickey theory: "goodness is relative." It took the genuine article to expose the Ersatz nature of the previous product.

Those few owners who proclaim that they can fill their ranks with minor leaguers have to be nuts. Turnstiles would rust because the big leaguers no longer have the built-in fans they once took for granted. They have a selling problem to do and much too few stars to sell. Costs for the owners have risen outrageously. Salaries for the players also have risen outrageously.

When a shortstop with a .227 batting average, Dal Maxwell of the Cardinals, can command a $37,000 salary, old-timers sadly stunk their hands at the thought that Lou Gehrig never received that much. Other Cardinals earned more last season than Babe Ruth in his palmy days and there was only one Babe.

The owners need the players and the players need the owners. Neither group is underprivileged and the common man hardly feels a wave of sympathy for athletes whose average salary is $20,000 per annum. The longer they extend their battles of greed the more baseball is hurt. And the sport is not quite that healthy to start with, especially when it starts to resemble a goose that lays golden eggs.

Baseball strike won't be first

NEW YORK (UPI)—If the major league players actually go on strike over the pension issue, it will not be the first strike in major league baseball.

That distinction is owned by the Detroit Tigers, who staged a one-day walkout in Philadelphia on May 18, 1912.

Ty Cobb had been suspended by Ban Johnson, president of the American League because the fiery Ty had climbed into the stands to chase a heckler during a game in New York.

Cobb's teammates rallied 'round and declared that if Ty couldn't play, neither would they. In those days, failure to appear for a game meant a $5,000 fine, and Hughie Jennings, manager of the Tigers, was in no mood to give up that princely sum.

With the help of Connie Mack, Jennings helped a team to play the Athletics. They found the squad on the campus of St. Joseph's College.

"The Tigers didn't forfeit—but they might as well have. The Athletics won, 21-2, and the losing pitcher, Aloysius Travers, gave up all 24 runs. Only 14 were earned, however, because his college mates supported him with nine errors.

The rebellion of the real Tigers lasted only that one day.

Olympic Invitational meet tonight

NEW YORK (UPI)—The U.S. Olympic Invitational track meet, blue-ribbon event on New York's 1969 indoor game calendar, takes place tonight with 36 Olympians, including decathlon champion Bill Toomey, taking part.

The meet, expected to attract the season's largest crowd for an indoor track event at Madison Square Garden, has lured 26 members of the U.S. Olympic team along with 10 members of foreign teams.

Meet director Jesse Abramson has lined up 26 events, including a "mini-decathlon" featuring Toomey, the Californian often acclaimed as the world's top athlete.

The mini-decathlon will consist of five events—the shotput, 55-meter dash, high jump, long jump and 400 meters.

In accordance with Olympic Games history, the events will be conducted in meters. Eleven events have been named in honor of living Olympic champions, 10 of whom will attend the meet. They include Jesse Owens, who won four gold medals in the 1936 Olympic Games at Berlin.

The contingent of Olympians from the Mexico City Games will include world pole vault champion Bob Seagren of University of Southern California, hurdler Willie Davenport, sophomore whiz Martin Liqueiro of Villanova in the 1,500 meters; teammate Larry James in the 400 meters and long jumper Bob Beamon.

Seagren, who a week ago lifted his world indoor pole vault mark to 17 feet, 6 inches, and Beamon, holder of the world record in the long jump with a fantastic leap of 29 feet, 2 1/4 inches, will be out to make up for sub-par performances in their earlier appearance in the Garden this season.

The confident Californian would like to push the record to 18 feet before retiring to pursue a career in television and the movies. Beamon, a New Yorker, has been hampered by a leg injury and has been unable to come close to his Mexico City performance.

One of the newest entries in the meet is Richmond Flowers, the University of Tennessee football player and track star who will be making his first indoor appearance of the season in the hurdles. Flowers suffered an ankle injury in football which prevented him from returning to the indoor circuit.

The hurdles shape up as one of the top events on the program with Davenport, Hall, Leon Coleman and Flowers competing.

Villanova has withdrawn its crack two-mile relay team because two members of the quarter—Tom Donnelly and Frank Murphy—will be taking midterm examinations.

Top outsiders entered include Canadian Bob Finlay of Toronto in the 3,000 meters.

Field determined for Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—David Pearson in a Ford Talladega and Bobby Isaac in a Dodge Charger swept to victory Thursday in a pair of 125-mile races to determine the starting lineup for Sunday's $208,000 Daytona 500.

The two sprint races, marred by a number of minor mishaps which kept yellow flags flying, set up a tight duel between the Fords and Dodges in the world's richest stock car race.

Pearson, of Spartanburg, S. C., and defending 500 champion Cale Yarborough of Charlotte, N. C., led five Fords across the finish line in front in the first race. Isaac led a one-two-three sweep for Dodge in the second race.

Pearson, who turned record laps of more than 150 miles an hour, will start in the second position on the inside row Sunday beside pole-sitter Buddy Baker in a Dodge. Baker won the pole two weeks ago with average of 188.901 miles an hour.

Starting behind Baker, Pearson and Yarborough on the inside row Sunday will be Ford drivers Donnie Allison, Huey-town, Ala., A. J. Foyt, Houston, and Benny Parsons of Detroit. It will be Parsons' first appearance in the 500 after he won last week's "ARCA 300" race here.

Isaac, who already owned the outside starting position for the 500, was followed in the second race by Dodge drivers Charlie Glotzbach, Georgetown, Ind., and Paul Goldsmith of Munster, Ind. Fourth was Californian Swide Savage in a 1968 Mercury.

Pearson's winning average was 152.181 mph. Isaac's was 151.668.

Both Bobby Allison of Huey-town, Ala., and Richard Petty of Randleman, N. C. ran into troubles in the races, but both will be ready to run Sunday.

Allison had a rear window pop out of his Dodge Charger while leading the first race and it slowed him down. Petty slapped the wall twice in the second race and finished a full lap behind the leaders.

Pearson and Isaac each won $1,200 for their victories. Isaac started at the pole in the second race and Baker at the pole in the first race, but Baker dropped out.

Dogs big business

Dear Ann Landers: A while back you said it was risky to publish letters about people who act foolish over cats or dogs because every time you do, dozens of readers telephone the publisher, write to the editor, cancel their advertising, and stop taking the paper. Even if this letter never makes the column I want to tell you what happened to my sister.

Dora lives next door to people who have a pet scottie named MacTavish. They went on a trip recently and asked Dora if she would take MacTavish. Last year they put him in a kennel for 10 days and he went on a hunger strike and nearly starved to death.

These people telephoned Dora every night to talk to her dog.

In fact, they put the call through person-to-person for Mr. Sandy MacTavish. Dora held the dog up to the phone and when he heard their voices he cried for three minutes and that was supposed to be a conversation.

Are people getting crazier, Ann, or are the crazy people just getting more publicity? Where will it all end?

BAFFLED BARNEY
Dear Baff: Do you know that Americans spend more money on dog food than on baby food? And only last week I read where dog cosmetics are getting to be big business.

Gone are the days when flea powder was the only thing you could buy for a mutt. Now you can select Poochie Nail Polish in five shades, perfumes with names like Le Chien, Third Paw and Air Pette. A birth control pill is available for lady dogs who go in for planned parenthood. And dig this — there's a hound's mouthwash called Happy Breath. Man's best friend is also one of his best customers.

Confidential to Why Do They Do It? Drug users do it for a variety of reasons — disappointment, insecurity, to get out of the dumps, to combat fatigue, to escape boredom, to remove inhibitions, to induce sleep, to feel peppier, and alas, to experiment with something they've been hearing about so they can say that they, too, have had the experience.

First, live with wife

By JEAN ADAMS

HAIRY EXILE: (Q.) I left my parents to live on my own so I could wear my hair long. I'm going to a junior college to avoid the draft. I'm 18 and married. I don't make enough yet to support us, so my wife lives with her parents and goes to high school. She's 15.

I'm 15 miles away from her and only get to see her once a week. I want her to finish school but that will take three years. What should I do?

Also, why can't parents and society accept long hair?
Yours Respectfully in Peace,
New York.

(A.) Someday you will wake up to two facts: (1) We all have problems and running from them doesn't solve them. (2) We are all members of society and we have to go by its rules or take the consequences.

Your No. 1 problem is your wife. You should not have married her but you did. Now live with her, even if you have to walk the 15 miles to her home each day, or ask your parents to take you back and keep you and her, or quit school and go to work full time to support her.

Your No. 2 problem, and a much smaller one, is your hair. To solve your No. 1 problem you may have to get your No. 2 problem cut. Please do not hesitate to do so if this is necessary.

You have done one thing right. That is keeping your wife in school. Help her all you can to finish.

VIETNAM MAIL: (Q.) I want to write to some boy in Vietnam. Can you give me a name and address? I'm 16.
D. in Birmingham, Ala.

(A.) You can address a letter to a USO in Vietnam and it will be given to a young serviceman. Maybe he will write you back. You can write as many letters as you want to as many USOs as you want. Here are some addresses: USO Saigon, APO San Francisco 96243; USO Danang Number 1, Advisory Team Number 1, APO San Francisco 96337; USO Tan Son Nhut, APO San Francisco 96307; USO Chu Lai, Task Force Oregon, APO San Francisco

96347; USO China Beach, FPO San Francisco 96986.

Chekhov to be staged March 1

STROUDSBURG — The Phoenix Players are now rehearsing the one-act play "A Marriage Proposal" by Anton Chekhov. The first performance is scheduled for March 1, for the Sisterhood of Temple Israel.

Members of the cast are Mrs. Jaquelin Levergood who portrays Natalia, a young woman. Her father Tsoibokow is played by Tony Belfiore. Frank Gardula, a newcomer to the Poconos, will be Natalia's suitor Lomov.

Mrs. Astrid Keuler is the director. She will be assisted by Margaret Adams Bryan on the script. Allen Keiser is the assistant director. Lights will be handled by Leslie Marks, costumes by Elisabeth Cracker and the set by Lewis Harrington. Mrs. Beatrice Kerner will design the make-up.

The play takes place before World War I in Czarist Russia. It deals with the problems of a father and his daughter and her suitor, a hypochondriac, who lives on a neighboring estate.

After the March 1 performance the play will be available to any group interested in contacting the director.

'Y' acquires $100 'Club' members

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County YMCA has acquired several new Century Club members during its current drive. Peirce Harley, executive director, announced.

"The Century Club," he explained, "is an association of individual donors and representatives of business firms who believe in the importance of the YMCA's citizenship training program for youth and who support that belief with an annual membership contribution of $100 or more."

Last year, the Monroe County 'Y' operated at a $12,000 deficit and "things don't look much better this year unless we expand our Century Club membership," Harley said.

"During the past week, letters appealing to potential Century Club members have gone out to all businesses and professional people in the county."

"A generous response will insure the financial stability of the 'Y' and allow us to enlarge our services to the community."
